BIG BOOST IN EXCISE, INCOME TAX EXPECTED

Congressional Leaders Give Widespread Approval To Revenue Plan.

EXPERTS MAP DETAILS

Emphasis on Two-Thirds Cash and One-Third Borrowing By President Foreseen.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Expressing continued opposition to a sales tax, President Roosevelt said today he would make a tax statement soon to the nation outlining the administration's drive to raise an additional $3,500,000,000 annually in emergency defense revenue.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Widespread congressional support was accorded today to the administration's enormous program of tax increases by which virtually every citizen soon would be called upon to pay a greater share of the government defense-swollen expenditures.

Specific details of the plan to raise $3,500,000,000 in new revenues remained to be disclosed, but all signs indicated that higher income and excise taxes, new sales levies and possibly a tax on wages would dig into the pocketbooks of both the rich and the poor as never before in America.

Treasury experts worked at top speed to whip details into shape for submission to congress next week. The plan will be presented to the house ways and means committee by Secretary Morgenthau at a date yet to be fixed.

But before that the broad outlines and possibly some of the concrete tax proposals may be given by President Roosevelt in a radio speech or other message to the nation.

The president, it was believed, also will emphasize the necessity for meeting about two-thirds of the vast cost of American rearmament, aid to Britain and other federal expenses on a cash basis.

The two-thirds cash, one-third borrowing formula was first disclosed yesterday by Secretary Morgenthau in announcing the total of new revenues to be raised.

What Terrific Air Attack Did to Britain's Capital City

This cablephoto from London shows only a part of the devastation wrought by German aerial bombers in a terrific eight-hour raid of the British capital. It was the greatest massed Nazi air attack of the war. U. S. Ambassador John G. Winant narrowly escaped death when a high explosive bomb fell near where he stood speaking to residents in the west end, hard hit by the bombing. Last night the British retaliated by bombing Berlin severely.

HOUSE PASSES GUARD BILL BY HUGE MARGIN

Votes 105-4 For Creation of Ohio Unit With Maximum of 4,800 Members.

'ZERO HOUR' CITED

Legislators Also O. K. Boost In Payments Under State Compensation Law.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Amid the echoes of one member's assertion that democracies stand near the zero hour, Ohio's house of representatives passed today 105-4 an emergency bill to set up a state guard force.

The measure, already approved by the senate, now goes back there for concurrence in drastic amendments made by the house military affairs committee to give the guard powers comparable to the national guard, now in federal service.

Rep. John J. Buckley (D.-Mahoning), told representatives that "after reading the papers today, I have come to the conclusion that the democracies are standing at one minute to twelve."

Buckley spoke in opposition to an amendment by Rep. Michael P. O'Brien (D.-Cuyahoga), which would have limited the personnel of the state guard to a minimum of 1,000 and a maximum of 2,000 in peacetime. The present bill fixes the maximum at 4,800 with a minimum of 1,000.

O'Brien's amendment was tabled.

Rep. George D. Barrick (D.-Coshocton) declared it was imperative that a state guard be set up, and Rep. Thomas H. Burk (D.-Lucas) said the measure had the complete support of organized labor.

The four representatives who opposed passage were O'Brien, George P. Grusenmeyer and Frank Miller, Montgomery Democrats, and Albert A. Shilling, Stark Democrat.

Passed by the senate March 13, the bill would allow the governor

50,000 Nazis Reported Dead In Onslaught

New Defense Line Formed In Northern Greek Area; Heart of German Capital Blasted By New High Explosive Bombs.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—The British government warned today it would commence "systematic bombing of Rome" if either Athens or Cairo, Egypt, is attacked.

(By Associated Press)

German troops flooding down from the north—presumably from fallen Yugoslavia—drove the Allied armies to execute a "gradual withdrawal to a shorter line of defense" in northern Greece today, and it appeared that the 13-day-old battle of the Balkans was fast approaching its critical stage.

British middle east headquarters, acknowledging the Allied retreat deeper into the Aegean kingdom, declared, however, that the German advance had involved a "costly" toll.

Some estimates put the Nazi dead at 50,000.

"The situation is developing unfavorably," a Greek spokesman acknowledged sadly.

"The struggle against two empires (Germany and Italy) imposed on us by Germany could not last indefinitely."

Dispatches from Athens said as least 10 German divisions—about 120,000 troops—were slashing at the Allied lines, supported by more than 1,000 warplanes.

Australian, New Zealand and other British troops fighting in the Mt. Olympus sector were reported under terrific aerial bombardment, while on the west flank, Nazi panzer columns knifing down the Greek-Albanian border placed the Greeks in new jeopardy.

Yugoslavia's struggle was pronounced ended.

Hitler's high command said surviving troops of Yugoslavia's 1,200,000-man army surrendered unconditionally, effective at noon (5 a. m. EST) after 12 days of fighting.

By contrast, Holland lasted only five days against the Nazi blitzkrieg last year, Poland 18, Belgium 19, and France 45.

In the western air war, RAF planes retaliated swiftly and violently for the Nazi Luftwaffe's attack on London Wednesday night, blasting the heart of Berlin with the war's heaviest raid on the German capital.

Minister of Home Security Herbert Morrison said the RAF struck with its new super-bombs for the first time, and he added:

"Unlike the Nazis, we make no hysterical noises about reprisals.

SLOWS COUNTY DRAFT QUOTAS

State Calls For Only One Selectee Between Now and May 13; 190 Set to Go.

Richland county selective service boards had nearly 200 young men ready to go to army camps today, but there was no place to send them.

With state draft headquarters calling for 500 white men and 45 colored selectees May 12 and 13, Richland county was asked to send only one man to camp through May 13. He will be colored and he is scheduled to leave May 13 from the Board 1 district.

Ohio selective service officials announced that the induction machinery will be slowed down during t he rest of April and all of next month. They indicated that May would be the quietest month since conscription began last fall with only tho two calls for 545 men on the schedule for the month.

Approximately 190 men have been examined and are ready to go to camp from Richland county when they are called, draft board records showed today. It was expected that fewer men will be called for physical examinations here until another call is received for a large group of selectees.

Ohio selective service officials reported that heavy calls from other states are helping to reduce the number of Ohioans who will be inducted in April and May. The state has sent 340 selectees since last November.

Family Terrified But Uninjured As Lightning Rips Roof.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— Families in two west side homes were terrified today when a bolt of lightning struck a house and ripped into the roof and sides of the structure with a sound like the explosion of a powerful air bomb.

The house ocupied by Bax Oblok and his family, was damaged to the extent of $1,200, but no one was injured. The lightning struck at 5:05 a. m.

Schoolboy Athletes From 98 Schools Arrive Here

Housing Problem Solved As Vanguard of Speedsters Arrives for 15th Annual Mansfield Relays.

By REX V. HESS, News-Journal Sports Editor.

The vanguard of hundreds of schoolboy athletes who will represent 98 high schools in Mansfield's 15th annual Relays tomorrow, began arriving in the city today, and had the promise that all those staying overnight would be comfortably housed and fed.

Ralph Chapman, chairman of the Relays housing committee, said this morning 160 room reservations have been made for the boys tonight, and that not more than 150 athletes are expected in the overnight group.

It was a happy housing chairman who reported the success of pleas for Mansfield to show once more its traditional hospitality. "We were swamped with telephone calls yesterday afternoon and night," said Chapman, "as Mansfielders rushed to offer their homes in the emergency. We certainly want to thank them for their response."

The boys will be given breakfast tomorrow by their overnight hosts, and will be sent forth to "do or die" for their respective schools.

Cleveland East Tech's veteran team is favored to successfully defend the Mansfield Relays championship it won last year, but is expected to get

CROSS PACIFIC

American-Made Patrol Bombers Reach Singapore.

SINGAPORE —(AP)— American-made patrol bombers—the same as the latest additions to the U. S. navy—roared in here today after a trans-Pacific flight.

They were greeted by squadrons of RAF pilots in Brewster-Buffalo fighters which, authorities announced, were in the air within 24 hours of their uncrating.

American-built Lockheed Hudsons also roared seaward to meet the big patrol bombers completing their voyage across the South China sea to join British and Australian patrols charged with keeping the empire's eastern airplanes clear.

STORM CAUSES HEAVY DAMAGE

Loss Set At $200,000 As Twister Leaves Scores Injured.

FILLMORE, Mo. —(INS)— The season's first twister in northwest Missouri left scores of persons injured in Fillmore today, and damage in excess of $200,000.

Demolished by the storm were the town's new $40,000 Baptist church, the Christion church, 20 houses and a hotel. Telephone and power lines were ripped down.

Fillmore, with a population of 460, last was hit by a twister in 1922.

SQUEEZE PLAY

Liquor Agents Wring Evidence Out of a Rug.

CAMDEN, N. J. —(AP)— New Jersey liquor board agents literally wrung evidence of a rug—enough, anyway, to cause a woman to be fined $150 on a charge of possessing untaxed alcohol.

Raiding the woman's home, agents found several broken bottles on a carpet which was suspiciously damp. They decided on the squeeze play.

JAMESON SNAGS LOAN BILL VOTE

Senator's Absence Leaves Committee In Deadlock on Law to Cut Interest.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—In a surprising reversal of action, the senate banking committee today reconsidered the controversial small loan control bill and unanimously recommended it for passage. At a special meeting today, the committee swiftly adopted several minor amendments and then sent the bill to the senate floor with its full approval.

Absence of Senator Joseph Jameson, one of the 27th-29th district's two Republican senators, from a committee meeting last night in Columbus temporarily held up a move to get the debated small loans bill onto the floor of the legislature for a vote.

Jameson's absence resulted in a deadlock on the bill in the senate banks and loans committee when a motion was made to recommend it for passage. The committee was deadlocked in a three to three.

Jameson, a Republican, one of the two senators from the senatorial district which includes Richland county, explained today that he did not attend the committee meeting because he had other state matters to attend to.

He said he previously agreed with other members to report the Forty-three vehicles and 105 men and officers will be included in the convoy which is making its way back to Fort Knox, Ky. Last week the same men passed through the city as part of a larger convoy transferring 97 armored scout cars and 500 men from Fort Knox to Pine Camp.

Captain Thad A. Broom will command the convoy which will stop overnight at Battery D's armory on Ashland road.

YOUNGSTOWN —(INS)— First-degree murder charges will be sought from a Mahoning county grand jury against Owen Bickel, 21, and Harold Cox, 19, Coshocton, youths, it was announced today by Prosecutor William A. Ambrose, even though police have accepted their alibi in connection with the killing of Mrs. Alphonsus Foley, 39.

Ambrose said he was not satisfied that Bickel and Cox were in Greensburg, Pa., on March 10, the night that Mrs. Foley, mother of nine children, was shot in a lonely field.

UNAWARE: FDR Says Nation Fails to Realize Situation

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt expressed belief today that American public opinion was not adequately aware of the acuteness of the war situation in Europe but that it was becoming increasingly aware.

He made that statement in response to a press conference inquiry and went on to add that he thought Americans could be made increasingly alert through the exercise of their general intelligence, mental processes and through what he called cracker barrel and press club conversations.

But to a question whether he thought reverses suffered in Greece by British and Greek forces had increased the danger to this country, he replied that he did not think the question should be asked or answered.

Further interrogation brought from the president these additional statements bearing on the defense program and aid to countries battling the Axis:

The administration has authorized specific shipments of material to China but Mr. Roosevelt does not know whether any has started on the way across the Pacific.

The chief executive does not see now any steps in prospect similar to a decision to curtail auto production 20 per cent.

The shortage of soft coal resulting from a three-week shutdown of mines has not yet seriously affected the defense program. The president hopes some mines will be running again by next Monday.

A war department plan to establish a system of civilian observers to watch for attacking airplanes is the application on a nation-wide scale of experiments tried in upstate New York last summer in army maneuvers.

In this connection, the president told a reporter he knew as much as the chief executive did as to whether establishment of the volunteer civilian organization implied that there was actual danger of an air attack.

HALTED: British Say German Drive Toward Suez Bogs Down

(By United Press)

LONDON—The German drive against Egypt and the vital Suez canal has been halted and the Axis forces have been put on the defensive around Tobruk and Sollum, British military quarters said today.

Military experts declined to prophesy whether the German drive could or would be resumed. It was said that the British campaign against Italy in Ethiopia has not yet been finished. Italian forces still were resisting in small units with the British pursuing and harrying them.

The Axis mechanized forces had been striking with steadily increasing fury at the British empire line on the Egyptian frontier after driving across eastern Libya in two weeks.

Empire forces were reported holding well with the aid of British navy attacks on German-Italian advanced positions and Royal Air Force attacks on the Axis supply lines and concentration points to the rear.

It was indicated now, military experts said, that the situation in the western desert was increasingly a question of time—whether the empire line could hold until reinforcements, proceeding by forced march, could arrive at the front from East Africa.

Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, commander in chief of the army of the Nile, needs two or three weeks in which to consolidate a new army, some experts said.

Barbed Wire, Troops Guard Interior 'Frontier' of France as Nazis Seek to Inflame Occupied Area

By KENNETH DOWNS
(INS Staff Correspondent)

LISBON—The demarcation line between occupied and unoccupied France is now as tightly guarded as a frontier between hostile countries.

Troops of cavalry, bicycle patrols, snipers with telescope sights, dogs, barbed-wire entanglements and land mines are slowing down the "underground railroad."

Many have been killed trying to get through lately; still more have been arrested. Not even foreign diplomats are allowed to go back and forth now, except in very special cases. Legations in Paris can only send couriers out about once a month.

Why, because, it appears, a sustained campaign is now under way to inflame the two regions against each other.

The Paris press and radio, completely German-controlled, daily denounce the men of Vichy and the people of the unoccupied region, who are pictured as living in sinful luxury while occupied France suffers.

The continual intimation is that if Vichy were ready to "collaborate" all the way, all France would be better off. Despite the steady hammering of this propaganda, results have not been marked yet, although some ill-feeling now begins to show.

There is something indescribably sickening about this delib-

Describes Nazi 'Campaign of Hate'

EDITOR'S NOTE—What price—what object—the tangle of barbed wire and men and guns that divides unoccupied and occupied France?

In the following article, third of a series, Kenneth Downs, famed foreign correspondent for International News Service, reveals one of the prime reasons for the closely-guarded "frontier" is to prevent realization of the source of the campaign of hate now being promoted between occupied and so-called unoccupied France.

Just about tops in the knife and fork league was the Bissman bowling banquet last night at the Fairway as the Bissman company entertained 22 guests.

There were no speeches, which insured the success of the dinner to start with. But there was plenty of small talk flying across the table as the bowlers took the bird and dished it out.

The Bissman team goes to Lima Sunday for the Inter-City tournament, and if the keglers roll as good a game as they talked last night, the title is in the bag.

It was sort of a fish and game dinner. The fish was lobster, and the game, of course, was to get the fish from the lobster. It's a very fine game and one I can recommend for your leisure moments.

But if you're in a hurry, that's something else again. No one was in a hurry last night, and all stayed to enjoy the Bissman hospitality.

Lobster and laughter,
That's what we're after.
And that's what they got, for sure.

"You've been writing about me, and I bet you don't know who I am," said the portly, and somewhat oldish gentleman who could easily have passed for a senator.

And I didn't know, either. It was Brig Young, but so different he'd grown from the lean, well conditioned veteran cager I'd known 17 years ago performing for the Great Americans at the Y. M. C. A. gym.

We had a lot of fun last night hashing over old time basketball games and players.

So it turned up rain for tomorrow's running of the 15th annual Mansfield Relays, and now we'll see if those Cleveland East Tech tracksters can handle the heavy going it seems they'll be sure to find at Stadium field.

"We got three more entries this morning, and I hope that's all," reported a weary Harry Mehock, relays director.

"That makes a total of 98 schools, and what we'd do with any more I don't know. The new entries are Bryan, Whetstone and Toledo Waite.

"And what," he continued, "can you write about the Relays today?"

"That," I told him, "stumps me. We've told all there is to tell so often, that I'm completely written out."

* * *

But Mansfielders shouldn't need to be told again of the importance of that track show of tomorrow. Just the biggest sports event of the year for Mansfield, it should come close to setting a new attendance record.

Paul Carbetta Cops Nod Over Columbus Boxer

Al Sauer Wins Technical Knockout Victory Over Jim Kindel

By BOB HUFFMAN

PAUL CARBETTA came back to the home town stamping grounds last night and found the going a little rough as he hacked and cuffed his way to a decision over Willie Marchal of Columbus in the main go of the Friendly House boxing show at the Armory before a crowd of approximately 400.

In a fast moving bout that found neither of the boys in serious danger Carbetta came on strong in the fifth round to win the decision against Marchal, State American Legion champion.

Carbetta's left hook smashing home time and again failed to impress Marchal who came on strong to make the fight interesting from the opening gong. Carbetta weighed 115, Marchal 113.

Al Sauer, of Friendly House had a hard time finding the target against Jim Kindel, of Columbus, in the light-heavyweight semi-final. Finding the range in the third Sauer had Kindel on the floor for the count, but the bell saved the Columbus boy.

Sauer finally reached Kindel in the fourth for an eight count. He put the Columbus boy through the ropes with a series of smashing blows just before the bell ending the fourth. Kindel received a cut upon the head, and attending physicians refused to permit Kindel to continue. Sauer getting a T.K.O. win.

Leonard Waddell, 118, Friendly House, found Wick Hanna, 120, of Columbus, a rough, tough and willing boy. Hanna was more than willing until he ran into a right hand that had him on the floor at the bell ending the third and final round. Waddell won the decision.

The milling was close with judges' score cards showing Hanna with a slight lead on points until the knock-down just before the gong.

Winding up the battle with a hot third round Frank Truly, Friendly House lightweight, copped the nod over Dave Messmer of Columbus in a sizzling three rounder that was a crowd-pleaser all the day.

Featherweights Frankie Lee, of Friendly House and Felix Long, of Columbus waged a cagy battle in which the clowning of the Columbus lad proving fruitless. Lee took the decision.

Adam Miller, 174, Yocum A. C. finally got a long left hand out in front of himself to get the duke over Rudy Hoffman, 169, of Columbus. A wild third heat brought round of applause for both boys.

Warren Strine, Ashland, waited out a decision over Bob Miller, Yocum A. C. in a welterweight set-to that saw the Ashland lad willing to punch just frequently enough to tip the score cards in his favor.

* * *

Phil Stehle, 140, of Yocum A. C. decisioned Harvey Hickman, 145, of Marion, and James Alexander, 143, Friendly House, copped the nod over Herb Benedict, 147, Marion.

Two Dozen Horses Still In List For Classic.

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK —(AP)— If all you hear is true it's going to be a full house and then some out there on the downs when "My Old Kentucky Home" calls the horses for the derby, May 3.

For, despite an injury to Bold Irishman, which left his prospects about as bright as an old oatbag, and not forgetting that the next nine days' racing are going to make sharp slices in the lists, there are still two dozen or so of the gallopers in the running to get to the post.

James Joy Johnson Jabbers For Bob Pastor, Abe Simon

By HARRY FERGUSON

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—James Joy Johnston opened his spring hollering campaign today, and it looks as though Abe Simon and Bob Pastor will spend the rest of their lives having return bouts with Joe Louis.

Johnston, known as the boy bandit in pugilistic circles, is the manager of both Simon and Pastor. He can out-holler any manager in the prize fight racket and his present plan of campaign is to keep hollering until Louis has licked both his boys three times.

Other managers retire to an obscure corner and keep quiet after Louis had belted out one of their fighters, but not the boy bandit. His idea of pugilistic matchmaking is to have Simon fight Louis on Mondays, Wednesday and Fridays while Pastor tackles the Brown Bomber on Tuesdays. Thursdays and Saturdays. Sundays would be reserved for hollering.

The fact that Louis has licked Pastor twice and Simon once failed to deter the boy bandit at the official opening of his spring hollering campaign. He was in splendid voice and, as usual, was carrying on three conversations at once. Out of the left corner of his mouth he was dictating a bitter telegram of protest to the New York boxing commission. Out of the right he was pleading with Promoter Mike Jacobs to consider the merits of those two outstanding challengers for the heavyweight title—Simon and Pastor. Through the middle of his mouth, creating a whistling sound over his incisors, came a denunciation of Billy Conn and Lou Nova.

Herewith is an heroic attempt to merge the three conversations into one semi-coherent whole: "Why should the New York boxing commission allow a Joe Louis-Lou Nova match or a Joe Louis-Billy Conn match in this state? . . . The one to fight Joe Louis is a college man, born and bred in New York, a worthy contender who has given Louis his hardest fight—my own Abraham Simon—bums, bums, bums—that Nova and that Conn. . . . Who did they ever lick?"

An attempt was made to point out to the boy bandit that neither Conn nor Nova had ever had a chance against Louis whereas the Messrs. Simon and Pastor, like gongs, had been struck regularly by the champion.

The attempt failed like the gurgle of water in a glass against the roar of Niagara. The boy bandit merely got out of his chair and stood up for some vertical hollering.

* * *

The odd part about this whole business is that Johnston is very likely to get both of his boys in there against Louis again. Jacobs is seriously considering a Louis-Simon bout for Washington and a Louis-Pastor bout for Los Angeles. One reason is that Louis is popping the boys over so fast these days that Jacobs is running out of raw material and is forced to stage an encore now and then.

Reds Made Humble By Beatings

Get Away To Worst Start Since Rise To Power.

PITTSBURGH —(AP)— A disillusioned and humble ball club from Cincinnati wandered into town today, wearing a label of the champions of the world and bearing a hope that pickings would be better here than at home.

The Reds, having made their worst start since they were the National League's poor relations, are placing their faith in the strong right arm of Bucky Walters to give them a victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Bucky, who beat the Pirates five out of six times last year, has been sort of on the shelf as a result of stopping a batted ball with his groin down south.

His likely opponent is Max Butcher, who lost three out of five 1940 decisions to the Reds.

Yesterday's slight disaster in Cincinnati (score St. Louis 7, Cincinnati 6 gave the Cards the whole three-game opening series.

Neither the Cincinnati pitching nor batting was worth a paragraph.

The Cards put on a two-run rally to open the ninth and get ahead. With one out, Bob Logan, rookie southpaw for the Reds, gave Enos Slaughter a double, and he moved along on an infield play and scored on a wild pitch.

That only tied the score, but Martin Marion walked and scored the winning run on Frank Crespi's triple.

Ernie Lombardi, Red catcher, suffered a slight finger injury in the seventh trying to catch a foul tip.

Dickson Has Old Cunning

Columbus Right Hander Sets Back Saints.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Murry Dickson, the right hander who played a big part in Columbus' sensational climb in the American Association last year, apparently has lost none of his cunning between seasons.

Nor, for that matter, have his Red Bird teammates lost the spark that carried them to 43 victories in 60 starts at the tail end of the 1940 campaign and left them in second place behind Kansas City.

Yesterday they combined their efforts to give Columbus a 6 to 3 triumph over St. Paul as the Association's 40th pennant race began.

Kansas City's defending champions fell before the four-hit pitching of Bill Butland of Louisville and some timely hitting by Tony Lupien. Lupien got a single and a homer to drive in two runs as the 1940 playoff winners turned back the league winners, 3 to 1.

Bill Starr of Indianapolis contributed another four hitter and the only shutout victory of the day to send Manager Wade Killifer one up over his brother Hill, who directs the Milwaukee Brewers. Indianapolis pounded three Milwaukee hurlers for 10 hits, three by Chuck Aleno and two by Johnny Pasek to win 3 to 0.

Jim Bagby Gets Hill Job Today

Tribe Steamed Up Over Shutout Hurling.

DETROIT—(AP)—All steamed up over the success of their pitchers in the Chicago series, the Indians picked Jim Bagby to continue the good work against the champion Tigers today.

It was Jim's maiden Cleveland assignment, the Redskins having obtained him in a winter trade with Boston where he won 10 and lost 16 last year.

Detroit nominated Tommy Bridges, with a 1940 record of 12 and 9, to stop the Tribe in a renewal of perhaps the bitterest rivalry in the American league.

Al Smith joined Al Milnar in the victory column yesterday with a slick 2 to 0 decision over the White Sox. The National league castoff limited Chicago to six scattered hits, allowing only one man to reach third base and two to get as far as second.

Cleveland's batters nicked Thornton Lee for three doubles and four singles in the speedy contest. Only eight baseballs were used during the entire game, played in an hour and 37 minutes.

Ken Keltner doubled off the right-field wall and Hal Trosky slashed a single through the box to produce Cleveland's first run in the initial inning. The other tally came in the fourth on Beau Bell's two-base blow that almost cleared the wall and Smith's single past third.

The postman brought Roy Weatherly his draft questionnaire just before the Indians left Cleveland, but the fleet center fielder doesn't expect to be called for a long time. He is married and has a number above 3,000.

Manager Roger Peckinpaugh plans to start Bob Feller tomorrow and Mel Harder Sunday. That probably means Milnar will face St. Louis when the Indians return home Monday.

Peckinpaugh said he would start Feller every fourth day regardless of postponements.

Red Birds Get Away Flying

Uphold Experts Who Saw Chances For Pennant.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

A FEW weeks ago, when everybody was guessing and second-guessing baseball's pennant prospects, some of the experts proclaimed that if the St. Louis Cardinals jumped off to a fast start they would run away with the National League race.

Well, the Redbirds are away like a rocket.

They have just won three consecutive games from the World Champion Cincinnati Reds and there is no telling where or when they will stop. It might be today, but it wasn't yesterday.

The two western rivals put on a wild west sideshow, with 18 players taking part for each side, and the Cardinals came out by a 7-6 margin

Brooklyn's unpredictable Dodgers, rated right along with the Reds and Cardinals as flag threats, also absorbed their third straight lacing from the New York Giants 7-5 in a sandlot show of 26 hits and four errors.

The Pittsburgh Pirates plastered a 7-2 count on the Chicago Cubs behind the two-hit hurling of Truett (Rip) Sewell, who could have coasted after Vince DiMaggio hit a home run with the bases loaded in the first inning. One of the blows off Sewell was a homer by Rookie Lou Novikoff.

The Boston Bees bumped off the Phillies 7-5 with a home run attack that would have made the weak-hitters who used to inhabit the beehive squirm. Max West hit a homer with one on in the third. In the eighth, with the Bees trailing 5-4, Babe Dahlgren, the ex-Yankee slapped a round-tripper with one on, and, finally, relief Pitcher Wes Ferrell drove out a homer in the ninth and took credit for the victory.

Al Smith, southpaw castoff of the National League, shut out the Chicago White Sox 2-0 for the Cleveland Indians.

Joe McCarthy shook up his New York Yankee lineup and got a 9-4 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics that was cheering mostly because Lefty Gomez went the route for the first time in more than a year.

CHAPTER XXIX

"No. With a friend of mine, Dr. Gomez. I'll give you his number, or better yet, I'll phone you here. About ten o'clock, say?"

"That will be fine. And thank you very much for everything."

"Not at all. Glad to be able to help."

What a lucky break, Joan thought. It all worked out so perfectly. If Mr. Mulford had his own plane, how could Karl possibly check on them? She roused the desk clerk and had him ring Paul's room.

"Please come down, Paul," she begged. "I must talk with you."

Thomas came in from the veranda. "What do you think?" he asked.

"It sounds fine," Joan agreed. "That man is my former employer. I've known him for years. He's here on a vacation."

"Then you'll go, too."

"It certainly seems like a good chance, but I'll have to talk to Paul. In any case, Thomas, Mr. Mulford has promised to take you."

"Thanks, Miss Leland." The gratitude in his eyes was unmistakable.

Paul came down almost immediately. "What's going on?" he demanded.

"The most wonderful thing has happened! Arthur Mulford is here! I used to work for him before I got my job with Karl. He was the man who was trying to locate me through the bartender, also the one I saw on the street today."

"Wait a minute," Paul said laughing, "one thing at a time."

They went out to the patio, which was covered by a patchwork of shadows and moonlight. Thomas had gone upstairs and Joan and Paul sat down at one of the rustic tables. "So Arthur Mulford has offered to take you home?"

"Yes! How did you know?"

"Very simple deduction, darling." Paul laughed. "I read it in your eyes . . . I suppose Thomas is at the bottom of all this."

"Yes, Joan admitted. "He met Mr. Mulford in a bar and told him the whole story. Mr. Mulford has his own plane and offered to take all of us to San Francisco."

His keen eyes searched her face. "You want to go?"

"Not without you. But, Paul, if we all went, it might be better. We could get help and come back . . ."

A bird twittered sleepily, and the fragrance of a million flowers flooded the moonlit night. Paul smiled. "Okay: I'll go with you."

It did not occur to Joan that victory had been too easy.

The following day at noon they left Mazatlan in Mulford's plane.

Thomas was effusively grateful. "This is swell of you, Mr. Mulford," he said for the tenth time "You don't know how much it means to me. I've been on Karl's ship for almost three years!"

It was Joan's first experience at flying. Once or twice she tried to look out but it made her so dizzy she turned to Paul, saying, "I guess I can't take it."

Paul smiled placidly, much too placidly, Joan decided, eyeing him speculatively. This was the first time she had known Paul to give in so easily on any issue. But perhaps love had changed him. She said impulsively, "I know you're doing this for my sake, Paul, and I do appreciate it, really I do."

He smiled at her earnestness but said nothing.

Mulford was reading a newspaper and for a time all was silent.

Joan was busy thinking, planning. Paul would get someone to help him and they would go back to Mazatlan, if that was what he wanted. With outside help, he would have a much better chance than he would have had alone. A better chance to find Sybil and clear up the activities of the spy ring. Joan decided the first thing she would do when she arrived in San Francisco would be to buy some new clothes. She glanced ruefully at the black wool dress which had been constant companion. She never wanted to see a black wool dress again! She would buy something cheerful, maybe bright red. Something to celebrate the end of their troubles. She did not doubt for a minute that Paul would find Sybil, especially when he had the proper assistance. She was so absorbed in her happy contemplation that she was surprised to hear Paul's voice.

"You may as well know now."

"Know what?" She turned abruptly. Thomas was dozing in the seat behind them. Mulford had stepped forward to speak to the pilot.

"The worst," Paul said clamly.

Joan's peace of mind was shattered. "Now what?" she asked in alarm.

Paul leaned closer. "I told you I wanted to track down the rest of Karl's men to find out who was at the head of this. Remember?"

"Yes, of course, but . . ."

"That," Paul said, "is exactly what I am doing."

"I don't understand, Paul. What are you talking about?"

"You thought I agreed to come with Mulford because you wanted me to, but there is really another reason."

Her face was white. "What are you trying to tell me?" straight to the heart of the spy on the trail. We're being taken straight to thet heart of the spy ring."

"You mean that Mr. Mulford . . ." She could not go on.

"Mulford," Paul said clamly, "is the head of this whole business. I've known it ever since I obtained those papers on the ship."

"And you didn't tell me?"

"No. I didn't want to frighten you."

She leaned weakly back in her seat. "And I thought we were safe! But where are we going, Paul? Do you have any idea?"

"I have a very good idea, and if I'm wrong it's going to be tough on all of us."

She looked at him and there were tears in her eyes. "I don't think I can stand much more of this."

"I know, darling, but you must trust me. I've planned it this way from the first and so far everything has come out as I figured. If it goes on, I hope everything will be over within a week."

"Poor Thomas!" Joan said, looking over her shoulder. "This will be a terrible shock for him, Mr. Mulford, the head of the spy right! I can't believe it!"

"It's true! He's been working with Karl all the time. His importing shop was only a blind, the time you worked for Mulford just as Karl's Club Elite is. All you were really involved. Mulford fired you and refused to give you a reference so you would be forced to take any job that came along. The want ad was put in that paper especially for you. Mulford had decided you would be loyal and really transferred you to Karl's employ. If you hadn't fallen in love with Karl, you might still not have known what was going on."

Shocked at the revelation his words brought, Joan sat silently listening to the roar of the plane as it winged its way to their unknown destination.

STOCKS FAIRLY STEADY TODAY ON DULL MART

Tax, War News Widen Ranks of Conservatives, But Market Shows Resistance.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stocks were without much rallying fuel in today's market but the majority seemed reluctant to extend the decline.

Accorded mild support were Youngstown Sheet, Anaconda and General Electric.

Backward at times were Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, General Motors, American Telephone and Montgomery Ward.

Led by U. S. Governments, bonds improved. Commodities were a trifle uneven.

The somewhat gloomier war news, the darkening domestic tax picture and the announcement of a sharp cut in automobile production in the 1942 model year served to widen the ranks of Wall Street conservatives, brokers said. On the other hand, some speculative nibbling again was attributed to the fact the market was exhibiting more resistance to pessimistic developments.

THEATERS

Peacetime England.

England as it was before the present war is pictured in "Rage In Heaven." Robert Montgomery's starring vehicle at the Ohio. Hollywood has preserved many replicas of English buildings as well as furnishings which cannot be duplicated today and these were called into use for the screen adaptation of James Hilton's psychological study of a weakling who tortures himself with jealousy. Ingrid Bergman in the role of the wife, and George Sanders as the other man are supported by Oscar Homolka and W. S. Van Dyke.

Deanna Coming.

Deanna Durbin becomes a glamor girl in her first grown-up role in "Nice Girl," opening at the Madison Saturday. She is supported by Franchot Tone in the romantic lead and has Robert Benchley in the role of her father. As a small-town girl Deanna becomes the subject of a scandal when she engages in an escapade with a New Yorker.

Racing Picture.

Realistically behind-the-scenes drama of the sport of kings is "Ride, Kelly, Ride," opening today at the Ritz. Depicting the experiences of a jockey who rode to fame the picture has Marvin Stephens, Rita Quigley and Eugene Pallette at the top of the cast. "The Trail Blazers," co-attraction, features the "Three Mesquiteers."

Robber Chase.

Jeffrey [illegible] who turned in a fine performance in "All This and Heaven Too" has a two-fisted role [illegible] "Money and the Woman" playing at the Majestic. He blazes the trail that leads to the capture of a bank [illegible] [illegible] Brenda Marshall [illegible] the climax [illegible] [illegible] around [illegible] and Henry [illegible] [illegible] "[illegible] of the Rio Grande" the second picture is filled with [illegible] and [illegible].

Always the Villain.

Roger Pryor [illegible] naturally draws the role of the 'bad man' in pictures and as a racketeer in "Bowery Boy," showing at the Park, he resorts to skullduggery that almost wipes out a section of the East Side. Dennis O'Keefe casts a rejuvenating influence on the scene as a young doctor bent on helping a gang of kids to get back on the right path. Jimmy Lydon is the one in particular. Louise Campbell is O'Keefe's nurse and sweetheart. "Green Mountain Skies" with Gene Autry is the second film.

ALLIES RETREAT IN GREECE, RAF BLASTS BERLIN

50,000 Nazis Reported Dead In Balkan Drive, New Defense Line Forms.

Let Hitler understand that we have as much right to bomb Berlin as he has to bomb London."

The Germans admitted that RAF planes broke through anti-aircraft defenses and started fires in Berlin residential sections and damaged "cultural institutions," including the Prussian State library—a reminder of the Nazi high command's threat yesterday that damage to such targets would bring prompt reprisals.

The Luftwaffe's overnight attacks centered on Portsmouth, English south coast naval base, which was bombed for several hours.

London's millions, expecting a return call, underwent two brief alerts, but no bombs fell.

Authoritative quarters in London acknowledged that the situation in Greece was "serious" but that the British-Greek line had not been pierced.

Eye-witness accounts from the battlefront said waves of German soldiers, supported by screaming dive-bombers, were being hurled incessantly at the Allied defense lines with a staggering loss of life.

An Allied estimate said 50,000 Nazis had been slain in Hitler's blitzkrieg smash into the Aegean kingdom, and it was declared that British troops in the Mt. Olympus zone had hurled back repeated mass attacks by German infantry for six days.

Hitler's high command said 17,000 prisoners had been taken on the Greek front and that the battle was going successfully for Germany despite "the most difficult terrain and weather conditions."

Other Nazi reports said that the Germans had taken many British prisoners in a systematic series of thrusts into northern Thessaly—gateway to southern Greece—and that the invasion was moving ahead "on schedule."

Front-line advices declared that Nazi bodies were piled high, with the German high command still plunging fresh and seemingly inexhaustible divisions of men and machines into the assault.

The Greeks admitted their troops were slowly falling back in the west and central sectors, with Nazi armored columns apparently striking hardest about 40 miles north of Trikkala, center of the Allied defense line, and the Italians driving down from Albania on the west.

Premier Mussolini's high command reported that Italian troops had recaptured Premet and Argirocastro, 10 miles north of the Greek-Albanian frontier, and regained Porto Palermo, on the Adriatic sea coast.

Porto Palermo lies six miles south of Chimara, which had been mentioned as the extreme west end of the Greek Allied defense line.

Fascist dispatches said the Greek army retreating from Klisura, in central Albania, was in grave peril of being cut off by Italian troops driving toward Perat on the Grek-Albanian frontier.

In the north, Ill Duce's Fascist legions were reported to have completed occupation of the Yugoslav coast with the junction by columns from the north and south at Dubrovnik.

Berlin said Gen. Dusan Simovic, who took over the government of Yugoslavia in a coup which enthroned 17-year-old King Peter II and overthrew the pro-Axis regime of Regent Prince Paul, had fled the country.

On the African war front, British officials said the German-Italian drive into Egypt toward the Suez canal had stopped and that for the last 48 hours the Axis forces had taken a "defensive attitude" around Tobruk, Libya, and Salum, Egypt.

Cairo dispatches said the British fleet was raining hundreds of tons of shells into Axis forces west of Salum, destroying long columns of motor transport.

French Assert 76 Killed at Brest

VICHY, France — (AP) — The French information office announced today that 76 persons were killed and 50 wounded in a recent night RAF bombardment of Brest and the casualty list was still incomplete.

It was reported that the British planes, starting at 11:30 p. m., dive-bombed the port continuously until 1 a. m., the night of April 14-15.

The information office said the bombing was "the most terrible Brest has known" and said rescue squads still were working to uncover victims.

A civil hospital was [illegible] but no other particulars of the material damage were [illegible].

The British say the German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau have been sheltering at Brest.

Fall of Argirocastro Claimed By Italians

ROME — [illegible] — Capture of Argirocastro in southern Albania and of Dubrovnik on the southern Yugoslav coast were announced in the Italian war communique today.

Italian forces also have taken the ports of Palermo and Premeti in southern Albania, the communique said.

WIRE, TROOPS GUARD FRONTIER

Germans Patrol 'Border of Hate' Within France; Press Campaign.

erate, heavy-footed effort to instill hate. But you find it on all sides in Paris. It strikes you more than the general deadness of the city, or the incongruousness of hearing German and seeing Germans everywhere. I find it throughout the notes I jotted down while there: first metro ride . . . twelve Germans in car, all standing . . . Germaine says they always stand as long as any woman is not seated. Says this impresses Paris women, even against their will. It's the little things that count . . . must admit most of them look good. Fit. Tough. Many look like Americans. Unusually handsome major with decorations . . . private who looks like Bruno Richard Hauptmann . . . Paul had same idea, grinned, "eighty million Hauptmanns . . ."

The awful posters at every station. Some picture horrible carricatures of Jews, Freemasons, clutching bags of loot with glaring captions: "Enough! Enough!" . . . Others with same hate motives advertising "the fire," presumably new French Fascist organization to burn up Jews, traitors, grafters, etc., inviting contributions . . . other green posters advertising jobs for French metallurgists in Germany: "Do you want to remain unemployed and starve or . . . come to Germany where you will be treated as one of family . . . same pay as German workman . . . vacations in France . . . you can send home 1,600 to 2,400 francs per month.

Confirmed story of Paris policeman . . . was roughly shoved for not walking between rails at intersection. In quick reflex turned and struck Nazi soldier. Next morning posters announced his execution. Minor demonstrations. It's quick death for anyone striking soldier.

Louis Harl and secretary working in INS office . . . bundled in overcoats and mufflers, with feeble electric heater by desk . . . office been so cold throughout winter believes it will never thaw out . . . somewhat thunderstruck when learned we'd come up without papers.

News of Indo China surrender played up as triumph of peace policy, blow against England, instead of beginning of disintegration French empire . . . Henri Haye gets big play with his indignant bleat from Washington, "it's crime France should have to beg her bread . . ."

Paris press almost uniform . . . hammers daily against England . . . leads American news with statements Wheeler, isolationists . . . people here have no idea what going on at home . . . at Louis' bar caused sensations when told them little first hand news from America . . . they call the Germans "potato bugs" and "Fritz," but not too loud. Twenty-franc fine if overheard . . . Francoise says the young bucks were "tres correct" at first, but getting a little more forward now . . . "they don't hesitate accost you now, 'ahn moment, Fraulein!', take you by arm" . . . much social disease in hospitals.

These Nazi girls won't win any beauty prizes . . . Parisiennes laugh at them in their gray uniforms, un-madeup faces . . . no love lost between Parisiennes and Frauleins . . . sidewalk cafe at Veil crowded as usual . . . could have fired rifle down Champs-Elysee this noon without hitting a car . . . absence traffic makes city seem even more grave-like . . . big-domed new, charcoal-gas automobuses.

Sad visit Mrs. T. . . . one son killed in action, other in German prison camp . . . all alone heatless flat.

Everybody scuttles in order avoid being caught on streets after midnight curfew. When see have stayed too late only thing to do is remain until daylight in nightclub. The bill comes high that way.

Patronize Maxim's if you want special consideration. You get butter and everything else [illegible] without tickets. If you are a regular customer you can get a special pass to circulate the streets after hours for "urgent" professional [illegible]. Mostly Germans there and a few wealthy sycophants.

Paris in the spring of 1941 is a place you are not reluctant [illegible].

HOUSE PASSES GUARD MEASURE

Votes 105-4 For Creation of Ohio Unit With Maximum of 4,800 Members.

to determine the size of the new guard, made necessary because the national guard now is in federal service at Camp Shelby, Miss.

As the legislature held its first Friday session since convening Jan. 6, the senate took up proposed legislation authorizing the possession of firearms by youngsters for markmanship training, if approved by the adjutant general.

Salary increases for numerous sheriffs appeared in prospect as the senate messaged to the house an approved bill fixing a minimum of $1,800 in counties of 20,000 population or less and $2,400 in counties with more than 20,000 residents.

The senate also passed a bill intended to require out-of-state corporations doing business in Ohio to list their Ohio shareholders and holdings, but there was some doubt whether it would accomplish its purpose of uncovering untaxed securities.

The house gave its approval to a proposal for increasing workmen's compensation death awards from $6,500 to $7,000 and raising the maximum weekly disability benefit from $18.75 to $21. The bill now goes to the senate.

The house judiciary committee recommended for passage a bill under which a $10,000 fine and five years' imprisonment could be imposed upon a person convicted of receiving anything of value to influence purchases by the state or a political subdivision. Bonafide workers would be exempted.

BIG BOOST IN TAX EXPECTED

Congressional Leaders Give Widespread Approval To Revenue Plan.

were enthusiastically favorable to the proposal, generally conforming with the view expressed by Senator Clark (D.-Mo.), a member of the senate finance committee that "we've done the appropriating and now we've got to pay the freight."

Republicans and Democrats alike said the full $3,500,000,000—or more if possible — should be raised. To attain that end, one authority reported, treasury and congressional tax experts were considering levies on "everything, including the kitchen sink."

Down-the-line boosts of 25 to 30 per cent in all present taxes were confidently predicted along with many new excise levies on such varied items as soda pop and washing machines.

Individual taxpayers who now pay rates starting at 4.4 per cent on income above $800, if single, and $2,000, if married, appeared to be in for stiff increases. Corresponding rises were indicated in the present 24 per cent corporation income tax, and in excess profits and excise levies. There was also talk that the $800 and $2,000 exemptions might be drastically lowered to bring in millions of new taxpayers.

Although a general sales tax, such as those levied by a number of states, was said by one authority to be "out of the picture," other informed persons asserted that so many new items might be subjected to manufacturers' excise taxes as virtually to provide a general sales levy. Bread and clothing were expected to be exempted but extensive exploration of the field of "luxuries" was said to be in progress.

One specific increase reported to have been proposed at a conference of treasury and congressional tax leaders prior to Morgenthau's announcement yesterday was in the gasoline tax—from the present 1½ cents a gallon to 2½ cents.

As Morgenthau explained the developing program, the aim is to provide a total tax yield of $12,667,000,000 during the fiscal year beginning July 1. Present tax rates would yield an estimated $9,223,000,000.

Expenditures for the year were estimated at $19,000,000,000, and approximately two-thirds thus would be covered by revenue. The remaining third would be met by borrowing.

Lord, Lady Die In Nazi Raid

Lord Stamp, a director of the Bank of England, and Lady Stamp were killed during the intensive German attack on London recently. Lord Stamp, one of Britain's best known economists, was an advisor to the cabinet on matters of economic policy. Lord and Lady Stamp and Lord Auckland, a famous naval architect, also killed in the raid, were the first members of the peerage to be killed during a German bombing raid in the war.

stern competition from Cleveland East, and Springfield.

Last year the Tech Carpenters swept the event with 78 points compared with 30 for Cleveland East. Better balance in the field of 98 schools entered for tomorrow's track and field tests should cut into that margin, followers of the sport believe.

The weatherman today predicted local thunder showers over Ohio for tonight and Saturday. But stadium field is in fine condition, according to Relays Director Harry Mehock, and can stand a few showers without danger of damage to the track.

Work of marking off lanes for the various events was completed this morning, and all is in readiness for Mansfield's biggest sport feature of the year.

Michign and Pennsylvania schools, who ruled themselves out last year rather than accept wrist watches as awards, have come back in the Relays fold and the meet will again be a five-state affair.

Kentucky and West Virginia boys will join with Ohio, Pennsylvania and Michigan athletes in the effort to break the supremacy demonstrated by East Tech in the 1940 meet.

Hope that at least one new record will go down in the Relays books was advanced today by Newark track followers. They wouldn't be surprised if Bill Craig tosses the discus beyond the record mark of 152 feet, three inches, set by Johnson of Poland in 1939.

Craig recently tossed the platter 145 feet, one and a quarter inches to set a new record for Newark high school.

BACK ON JOB

550 at Barberton Ohio Brass Plant Resume Work.

Although 550 employes of the Ohio Brass company's insulator plant at Barberton went back to work today after a one-day strike, company officials said they had no commitment on the part of the union that the return is permanent.

All departments of the plant were operating again this morning with the return of the striking workers, W. M. Marr, factory manager, said.

He added that the company and union representatives had reached no agreement on the inclusion of a clause in the union contract to permit individual workers or groups of workers to present their grievances to the company.

Company officials asked that the clause be included to protect the rights of workers under the Wagner Labor Relations act. They said union representatives objected to the clause, seeking to have the union set up as the sole representative of workers.

bill out of the committee for a vote, adding that "I don't go back on my promises."

Senate leaders said the bill now has little chance of further consideration, although its proponents arranged to reconsider it at another committee meeting next Tuesday.

The bill would reduce the legal interest rate on small loans, establish a maximum of three per cent per month for the first $100, two and a half per cent on the next $200, and eight per cent a year on amounts in excess of $300.

GUEST SPEAKER

Grange Lecturer Talks at Lexington Meeting.

Joseph W. Fichter, Oxford, Ohio State Grange lecturer, was guest speaker at a meeting of the Richland County Pomona grange last night at Lexington to observe the 75th anniversary of the national grange's founding.

Fichter told 300 persons representing the various granges in the county that the task before them was to keep America out of war. He advised tolerance of each others opinions and a constant search for means to prevent this county's entanglement in the conflict.

Special anniversary entertainment numbers were presented by members of each of the county's granges. Short talks were also given by County Agent George B. Ganyard and Miss Elizabeth Bay, county home demonstration agent.

'SEMI-BARBARIC' LANGUAGE HIT BY PROFESSOR

Ashland Instructor Tells Students To Free Selves of Written Slavery.

ASHLAND — From the quotation "The dead hand of the past must not be permitted to enslave the living presence," Dr. L. L. Garber, professor of English at Ashland college, drew a number of conclusions which he presented to the students of the college at the chapel services recently.

The professor said that every man or woman who has contributed to human progress has had to overcome and fight down the adherents to the dead hand. He noted that every age has its dead hands and gave examples of some of the present day. Dr. Garber told the students that the particular dead hand from which he wished them to free themselves and unnumbered millions is the slavery to a semi-barbaric written language.

Dr. Garber related that the English language, because many of its words have retained or taken on a spelling that makes them mere ideo-graphs rather than true symbols of sound, is barbaric. To get the English speaking people out of this freakish muddle which costs $100,000,000 a year, Dr. Garber suggested that every person should help phoneticize the language. He spoke then of the letters X, Q, and C which through phonetic spelling could be eliminated from use.

The true function of a language according to Dr. Garber, is to represent as accurately as possible by means of symbols, the sounds of the living spoken language. The professor pointed out some of the instances in which the English language fails to do this such as nine different sounds for "ough" and the 20 ways of representing the sound "sh."

"Our spelling is so irrational that we are never sure how to spell a word when we hear it, nor how to pronounce a new word when we see it in print," Dr. Garber said.

The English language which at first was practically phonetic has been broken down by a series of processes, Dr. Garber said. Showing how serious a matter this spelling is, the speaker said that it is a huge waste of money, it wastes millions of years of precious school time for every generation, it wastes millions of years of school teachers efforts, and it closes the doors of higher education to millions by retarding their progress and developing in them an inferiority comple.

OFFICER TALKS TO GALION CLUB

Policewoman Claims 'Younger People' Not Becoming Habitual Drunkards.

GALION—"It's not the young people that are going into the liquor joints and becoming habitual drunkards. It's not the younger people that are causing the most trouble," declared Margaret Slater, sergeant on the Toledo police force, last night as she addressed members of the Galion Business and Professional Women's club.

Mrs. Slater, tall and comely, her dark hair only slightly streaked with gray, is the grandmother of a 10-year-old boy, and Wednesday of this week observed her 19th anniversary of service on the Toledo police force. Head of the Woman's Bureau of the police department, Mrs. Slater has 11 women in her bureau.

Four policewomen have 265 dance halls in Toledo on their beat, Mrs. Slater having supervision of dance halls as her special work.

Although most of her work is confined to dance hall supervision and run-away girl cases, out of the 649 arrests that she has made, 487 of them were men. She boasts, in a modest way, that she has never lost a prisoner.

"Beautiful, sweet-looking little women are the most dangerous and guilty of crime, not the harder type," Mrs. Slater told her audience. "Younger people will not frequent the liquor places to dance if they are given clean places to go," she said.

"Young women around 25 and over who have sent their children to school and yearn to retain their youth are the ones that start seeking dance halls where liquor is sold, and are in the drunkard class."

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, APRIL 18, 1941.

"From Greenland's icy mountains to India's coral strand" has become a much shorter trip.

How does it happen that a self-styled "superior race" usually behaves in an unconvincing way?

Complaints come from residents of a New Hampshire village that they are being roused from sleep by the 9 o'clock curfew bell.

Civilian Victims of Air Attacks

CARRIED to the limit of its apparent intent, such warfare as is now being waged by Nazi Germany would leave a world in ruins—the accomplishment of a few madmen who have not kept pace with human progress from barbarism to partial civilization.

From whatever semblance of decency there may have been in earlier wars, the present one has descended to the utter fiendishness of mass killing of civilians, including men, women and children, by indiscriminate air attacks such as was visited upon London Wednesday night.

Word from Berlin yesterday was that news of the raid was "jubilantly hailed" in Germany, and it was set forth that the assault was "a reprisal" for the RAF bombing of Berlin a week before.

Use of incendiary and explosive bombs dropped from planes over England, and elsewhere in their aggressive warfare, originated with the Nazis and whatever counter attacks have been made with similar methods can scarcely be condemned by impartial observers.

Reaction of Londoners, who have displayed great courage under these attacks, is one of anger, with demand that the relatively humanitarian policies which have marked Britain's conduct of the war be supplanted by air attacks which would carry like death and destruction to Berlin.

"Show them that we can murder, too!" became the cry as Englishmen surveyed scenes of destruction, mourned their dead and took account of thousands of injured.

As war progresses from the plan under which armies met on fields of battle to the method of murdering civilians by attacks from the air, the need of eventually developing a workable peace formula becomes even more obvious.

Wage Increases Without Price Raises

GOVERNMENT action to prevent an increase in steel prices, following the recent agreement to raise wages in that industry, presents an interesting situation, the outcome of which will be awaited with considerable curiosity.

The situation, if tenable, seems to make close approach to the ideal—greater production costs without price advances, and with assurance of sufficient profits to encourage operation and expansion of private industry and business.

Appointment of Leon Henderson as federal price administrator signals the intention of government to protect consumers by keeping commodity prices within reasonable bounds.

Past experience with unscrupulous profiteers has shown the need for some such action, and Mr. Henderson has given assurance that he does not plan a "crackdown" policy but that his department will take a "decided interest" in unwarranted wage increases as well as in efforts to raise basic prices.

As the law now stands there is some question as to the authority of the government to regulate prices and congress may be asked to grant additional powers along this line.

Operating under the Office of Emergency Management, it is expected that the department of price administration will play an important part in dealing with priorities, wages and everything that affects price levels.

Boy Scout's Good-Will Hike

BOY SCOUTS are noted hikers, but 20-year-old Julio Cesar Berrizbeitia of Venezuela may become the most noted of all. Julio is an Eagle Scout with 13 merit badges. He is on a good-will hike which began Nov. 1, 1938, and will end one of these days at Mt. Vernon, where he will place a wreath on George Washington's tomb.

There were six Scouts in the party that started the long trek. One of them died of thirst in the Peruvian desert. When a second became ill with pneumonia three others decided to remain with him and then return home. Julio continued alone.

Since entering the United States, the youth has been offered many "lifts" by motorists, but he continues to travel by foot. He says he has worn out 50 pairs of boots. His trip is financed by Venezuelan Boy Scouts and those in cities through which he passes.

Julio is seeing the Americas intimately—but the hard way. He has been shot at by hostile Indians and fed and helped by friendly ones. He has dined with celebrities in the different countries along his route and no doubt will be entertained enthusiastically at many places in the United States.

Marx Brothers See Handwriting

"WE'RE sick of the movies," says the honest Groucho Marx. "By that I mean that movie fans are about to get sick of us. By getting out now, we're just anticipating public demand, and by a very short margin."

With this characteristic comment, Groucho of the fierce eyebrows and queer mustache—not to mention the spectacles—announces the breaking up of the famous Marx brothers team. Groucho expects to become a radio performer. Chico wants to lead a swing band. Harpo says he will enter legitimate drama.

The slapstick and mad waggery of the Marxes continued for some time after the good-looking and exaggerated pantomime of other movie comedians had vanished. And now, if they succeed in their new careers they will have proved themselves to be three smart fellows.

California's ham-and-eggers have decided to compromise on $20 a week, instead of the $30 originally demanded—so they won't be losing so much now they're not getting it.

A BEAUTIFUL FRIENDSHIP WHILE IT LASTS

Propose Trying Hitler's Own Game

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WHAT'S the matter with employing fifth-column tactics to undermine Herr Hitler?

The suggestion is Attorney General Robert H. Jackson's. He made it in the course of a speech in New York a few nights ago, and all the strategists in Washington, diplomatic and military, are falling over one another to indorse the idea. In a general way they doubtless had thought of it before but not as concretely as it was expressed by Bob Jackson.

Adolf's system, as everybody knows, has been to lend sub-rosa support to locally disloyal elements in countries he plans to overrun presently.

Even in the United States he has bunds to make a play to. They're not strong enough here to be a serious danger, though they're a nuisance, or an offense, anyway. But there are little European democracies that Adolf has found more susceptible.

In Norway, for instance, he had his Norwegian dummy, Quisling, on the job in advance of the German invasion, and Quisling appears to have had quite a little following. This by no means is to say that the Quislingites were in a Norwegian majority. If they'd attempted an uprising exclusively their own the Oslo government unquestionably would have squelched them in short order.

Subversive Influence.

But there were enough of them to be quite a subversive influence, which made itself considerably felt when the Nazis swooped down on the western Scandinavian peninsula. At least they were sufficiently potent to hamstring national resistance to the invaders. Consequently, Adolf's conquest was comparatively easy.

Austria, Hungary, Bulgaria and Rumania probably were somewhat more Nazi-istically impregnated than Norway was, but, from all accounts, even these countries were scared into Nazi-ism rather than converted by it. The best guess is that their populations also are overwhelmingly anti-Hitler, if they thought they could do anything about it.

Poland, Holland and Belgium obviously are about 100 per cent anti-Nazi, for they tried to fight and were licked, which must have left 'em sore as blazes.

Denmark, standing no show, did not fight, but it isn't Nazified, either.

Neither is France, except for the merest handful. That, too, is evident.

Counter Fifth-Columnizing.

Now, here are all these peoples, who, on an average, were perhaps five per cent fifth-columnized in advance by Herr Hitler, leaving 95 per cent who are willing to be fifth-columnized into anti-Hitlerites. Okeh, proposes Bob Jackson, let's go ahead and fifth-columnize 'em accordingly; they're wonderful raw material. And they ought to be fifth-columnized into solidarity as well as into anti-Hitlerism. Unified, Bob surmises that they'll bother Adolf aplenty.

Yugoslavia doesn't need to be tinkered with. The Yugoslavs are on the rampage already.

Bob didn't mention Italy, but, since he spoke, there are Washington observers who point out that there's another field for fifth-column activities.

Finally, couldn't some of it be pulled off in Germany itself?

Bob Jackson's thesis is that Adolf taught us the game. Why not profit from his instructions?

Listen World!

'Nothing Sacred'

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'M STILL handing medals to the Reverend Sidney W. Powell, who wrote that straight-to-the-chin article, "Can We Cure Crime?" It isn't often that a religious leader pulls on his gum boots and sloshes right down into the manholes of crime. But here's one who has the fortitude to go there and the tolerance to understand after he arrives, which is saying plenty.

Dr. Powell thinks, and says in no uncertain language, that we Americans have been riding for a fall. He looks with a suspicious eye on our vaunted "American Standards" of Living and Luxury, and ties them up, directly, with the Dead End Kids who've gotta kill somebody because they've been deprived of their Divine Right to 16-cylinder speedsters.

All of which is sound reasoning, if you have what it takes to face it. Even more is Dr. Powell's contention that Young America is suffering violently from a lack of respect for anything anywhere or anyhow. As evidence of which he cites:

"I had part in a high school commencement recently. It was quite formal; in fact, I was the only person on the platform without either tuxedo or cap and gown. When the diplomas were presented by the principal, one young man received his with one hand, and with the other handed the principal a cigar. Now there was nothing vicious about that. The audience laughed heartily. But I thought of my own student days and the veneration we had for the principal of a high school or the president of a college.

"Today, however, no one is vested with real authority. Nothing is sacred. I do not blame the young people. I question the state of society that develops this attitude. What of a generation that has no heroes, all of them having been liquidated by the debunking process? We lose something vital when everyone, regardless of attainment, is 'comrade'."

We weren't all "comrades" in the early American days. We didn't want to swap sweet kisses with the fellows on the "other side of the tracks." And, for all our democracy, we didn't want to be. We were, on the contrary, proud to be different. We wanted, individually, to be the best in our own line. Sure we were silly and lazy, as kids always are, but we still had ideals and a reverence for those ideals. There were things which we held sacred, even while we wiggled our ears and picked our warts. Things a fellow dreamed of with warm and wistful wonder.

'BUT NOTHING IS SACRED NOW!'

It isn't the youngsters' fault. It's the fault of us, the older ones, who've stripped the glory and glamor from the human record, in order to show our own smartiness. We're too busy listening to wise-cracks or dialing in on "hot numbers" to watch the silver weaving of the stars or sense the vast and lovely passage of the night. We're too excited over gossip columns to note the pattern which men are weaving for their lives out of blood and dynamite. There is no true reverence, any more—no true wonder or terror or shocked awakening.

WE'RE THE PUNCH-DRUNK GENERATION.

AND WE'RE PUNCH-DRUNK BECAUSE WE'RE ALLOWED TO GO ON EMOTIONAL JAGS BEFORE WE KNOW WHAT'S WHAT. ENCOURAGED TO SNEER AND JEER BEFORE WE CAN SEE BEYOND THE CHAIR RUNGS.

It's a beastly business, all this facile mockery of beauty and nobility and truth. It's beastly because it robs the youngster of his only real heritage. Life holds few realities at best—the love of Beauty and Bravery and Goodness lead the list. If you rob a child of his reverence for these, you've robbed him of everything that will make and keep his life fine and inspiring.

WHEN YOU WIPE THE REVERENCE FROM A YOUNGSTER'S LIPS YOU DARKEN THE CANDLES IN HIS HEART.

U. S. Chemical Company Probed; Housing Bill Delayed By 'Frills'

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The reports that the justice department is conducting a sweeping investigation of certain large chemical firms missed some highly interesting items.

One of the companies is the General Aniline and Film Corporation of New York. What was overlooked was that this concern was one of the six indicted in January on charges of violating the anti-trust laws in the production of magnesium, a key defense material.

The indictment declared flatly that "General Aniline and Film Corporation was organized by I. G. Farbenindustrie (giant German dye trust) in 1929 and its stock has since and through to the present been directly or indirectly controlled by I. G. Farbenindustrie." It was formerly called the "American I. G. Chemical Corporation."

Also not brought out was that the last annual financial statement of General Aniline, on Dec. 31, 1940, showed that it owned outright 56,300 shares of common (voting) stock, valued at $6,136,700, of the International Gesellschaft fuer Chemische Unternehmungen A. G. Switzerland, and another 28,600 shares of this firm's common stock listed as "50 per cent paid."

The government is interested in ascertaining whether Chemische Unternehmungen, although listed as a Swiss firm, is not actually Nazi-controlled.

Another item under scrutiny in General Aniline's report is 43,750 shares of common stock valued at $772,012 of American Magnesium Corporation listed as "sold subsequent to Dec. 31, 1940." American Magnesium was organized originally by the Aluminum Corporation of America, also one of those indicted in January. Since 1933 its ownership had been divided equally with General Aniline. Following the indictments, Aluminum Corporation bought out General Aniline's interest—a highly significant move about which there was little publicity.

Note—Magnesium Development company, the key patent holding company of the magnesium industry, also indicted in January, is still owned jointly by Aluminum Corporation and I. G. Farbenindustrie. It possesses all the vital patents on magnesium fabricating processes, so that even if the monopoly is broken on production of this strategic metal, its fabrication might still be controlled by this 50 per cent, Nazi-owned firm.

Private Matter.

GOVERNOR Prentice Cooper of Tennessee was introduced to A. R. Glancy, OPM ordnance chief, at a Washington luncheon.

"And what is your background, Mr. Glancy?" Cooper, a good Democrat, inquired pleasantly.

"I don't see how that is at all pertinent," replied Glancy very coldly.

Note—A former motor official, Glancy, as a deputy NRA administrator, was publicly denounced by the AFL for restoring the Blue Eagle label to a mill charged with violating the NRA code. During the 1936 presidential campaign he was one of the leaders of the Republican social security payroll scare that aroused widespread condemnation.

Bill of Frills.

PRESS GALLERY WITS have taken to referring to the stymied $150,000,000 emergency defense housing measure as the "bill of frills." This is a soft impeachment. Not in a long time has an important piece of legislation suffered more from congressional obstruction and inconsistency.

Introduced several months ago to meet an urgent defense situation, the bill was stalled for ten days in the house rules committee by a noisy row over the installation of "frills," such as refrigerators and gas stoves, in home for defense workers.

Finally, after inserting an amendment barring these appliances, the house passed the measure and it went to the senate. There it ran head on into another "frill" tangle—in reverse. This time a "frill" was put into the bill.

Brick makers protested that the $3,000 limit specified for each housing unit barred the use of bricks, and demanded that the ante be raised to $3,500. One of the chief pro-brick spokesmen was Senator Bob Taft of Ohio, a leading economy advocate, who sought to slash the lend-lease appropriation on the ground that it was excessive.

On the argument that savings in paint, repairs and heating through the use of brick would more than offset the $500 difference, the senate approved the boost—and added another delay. For now the amended measure has to go back to the house for it to decide whether bricks fall in the same "luxury" category as refrigerators and gas ranges.

Note—In an effort to make up some of the time wasted by the frill-conscious boys on Capitol Hill, Defense Housing Co-ordinator Palmer has gone ahead with plans for a number of projects, ready to start the moment the bill becomes law. One will be the largest low-cost housing project ever undertaken by the government.

Merry-Go-Round.

THE late Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, was known to the public chiefly as the father of prohibition, but on Capitol Hill he was considered a great worker for preparedness as well as a tolerant, kindly friend. . . . Veteran New Dealer Leon Henderson, defense price regulator, rates OPM Production Chief Biggers, one of the country's biggest glass manufacturers, and Priorities Chief Edward R. Stettinius, former U. S. Steel executive, as two of the fairest and most enlightened big business men in the defense organization. . . . Justice Stanley Reed follows the practice of the late great Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes in picking a new legal clerk every year, explains that he does it chiefly for his own benefit, to get the different viewpoints of bright young men. . . . Defense chiefs give Dr. I. Lubin, brilliant head of the bureau of labor statistics, a big hand for putting through the agreement establishing standard union wage and hour conditions in all West Coast shipyards. Negotiations are under way to establish this plan for labor peace in all the ship yards of the country and also in the aviation industry.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—If you like intimate studies in bronze of people you like, you will be interested in that famous head of Katharine Cornell by Guitou Knoop, which formerly was exhibited in the Salon des Tuileries. It has been placed in the foyer of the Shubert theater, a few feet off Broadway, where Miss Cornell is appearing in "The Doctor's Dilemma." The only other cast of this study is in the Chicago Art Institute.

The old like-father-like-son phrase doesn't hold water any more, certainly not in the case of Michael Mordkin. Young Mordkin, now 28, is a designer of package labels in Manhattan. His father was Mikhail Mordkin, noted ballet dancer and once a partner of Pavlowa.

THOUGH most of his attractions are fitted to the theme that nostalgia is sure-fire bait for the paying customers, Billy Rose has done it again with his tenderly and bawdily reminiscent production at the Diamond Horseshoe. The performer who gets the liveliest hand, and even honest, heart-warming huzzahs, from the crowd is Mae Murray, she of the bee-stung lips and romantically glamorous past. As of old, hers is a dervish waltz. "The Merry Widow Waltz." And the crowd loves it.

EVERY year, according to Daniel Eisenberg, some 75,000 husbands leave home. The average husband who runs away, says Eisenberg, weighs 163 pounds and is five feet, seven inches tall. Eisenberg has found a career on tracking down missing people. Last year he wrote a book, "I Find the Missing," describing his experiences. He is director of Skip Tracers, the missing persons bureau.

Now that there is no World's Fair to plague the existence of the smaller parks and amusement centers around the metropolitan area, Luna Park is blossoming into color with all the exuberance of a Georgia peach orchard. The park is planning numerous shows, similar to the affairs at the late and lamented World's Fair, which died a horrible death despite whatever you may have heard about it. Perhaps the Coney Island recreation center will realize its dreams. But if they over-do it, watch out. People around here fail to take parks seriously, once the frills get into the customer's hair.

PAUL LUCAS received enthusiastic press notices for his performance in "Watch on the Rhine." It was his first appearance on Broadway since his fine work with Ruth Gordon in "A Doll's House." . . . The composite appraisal of him was "solid sterling," which is pretty high praise any way you take it.

IN HIS next film, Frederic March will be cast as a minister. . . . Two of Broadway's greatest characters—George Gershwyn and George M. Cohan—will shortly have their lives filmed.

More Answers To Health Questions.

—By DR. CLENDENING

L. D. N.:—"I would like to know if carbonated beverages, such as pop, whistle and phosphates, are injurious to the health. I drink three or four of these bottled drinks a day."

Answer — No harm if you're healthy and if they don't make you too fat. Carbonation is good for a drink especially in hot weather; it quenches thirst faster.

A. B. S.:—"You said bicarbonate of soda is not harmful to the system but is it harmful or destructive to the coating of the stomach?"

Answer—On the contrary, it is soothing and protective to the coating of the stomach.

G. C.:—"Is there any harm in drinking a glass of tomato juice every morning before beakfast? If there is no harm, what good does it do? Is the juice of a lemon in a half a glass of water, with a half teaspoonful of soda, night and morning, a laxative?"

Answer—Tomato juice is an excellent drink in any quantity. It contains Vitamin C and probably other vitamin factors, and promotes digestion and increases appetite. The combination of lemon juice and soda is not necessarily a laxative.

U. G. W.:—"I have a discharge in my ear and it runs over once in a while. It seems to be wax. I have tried sweet oil and other remedies. It gives me a great deal of bother. What should I do?"

Answer—Wax in the ear may be a very simple problem, but it also may be very complicated and dangerous. In the early stages, your treatment is quite logical, but when the wax gets hard, it may become almost like stone and the use of sweet oil will not move it. I really think you need a doctor who can take an ear speculum and look in and detach the hard wax.

Tonnage Losses and Men.

The reports on Great Britain's shipping tonnage losses are watched closely and with dread. They may record the outcome of the war. So many merchant ships sunk. So many thousand tons. So the reports go. Occasionally some mention of the type of cargo lost gets by the censors. However, the striking omission invariably is about the crews. What happens to these brave seamen? Are they sunk without a trace? Are they set adrift in lifeboats? What becomes of them?

A loss of 146,000 tons is frightful for one week in the war at sea. What loss of men goes with that? Scarcely a thought is given to such calculation. That is the way of war.—Toledo Blade.

This Is Ohio

BEFORE ordering Gen. Wayne's army into Ohio to punish the Indians, President Washington made a last effort to conclude a peace treaty with them.

He dispatched three commissioners, Benjamin Lincoln, Beverly Randolph, and Timothy Pickering, to meet the tribesmen at the rapids of the Maumee in the spring of 1793. On July 29 the council began and the chief spokesman for the tribesmen said, "The Ohio river must be the boundry or blood will flow." The council broke up without anything being accomplished.

Gen. Wayne was notified of the failure of negotiations. He at once began his march which did not end until the Indian power was broken at Fallen Timbers Aug. 20, 1794.

DRAFT BOARDS TOLD OF NEW STUDENT RULE

Mansfield Officials Told of Deferment For Young Men Attending College.

Richland county selective service boards today were informed of a new draft ruling under which certain college students will be deferred until they finish their courses.

The county boards were instructed to classify college men on the basis of their courses, their standing in class, and the length of time they have been in college.

The new ruling points out that the student may be deferred "if the activity for which he is in training or preparation is essential to the national health, safety or interest."

Deferments will be granted for only six months at a time, board clerks pointed out, so that no student can consider himself exempt from the army regardless of the type of course he is taking.

Boards also were asked not to send doctors to camps with selectee groups, since the war department wants to commission qualified physicians and surgeons in the medical corps reserve.

Four Richland countians went to the Fort Hayes induction station in Columbus yesterday as replacements for other county youths who were rejected last month.

In the group leaving yesterday were Robert Mittman, Russell Eugene Hedrick, George M. Hammer, and Donald Yuncker, all of Mansfield.

Seventeen more county registrants passed their physical examination this week at the Armory, board clerks said. Thirty-nine were evamined, with eight receiving sentative approval and 14 rejected because of physical defects.

The 17 registrants who qualified yesterday make a total of 189 Richland countains who are ready to leave for the induction station when the next call is received.

Board clerks were of the opinion today that the county will not be asked to supply any more men in April, since the boards usually are given at least two weeks notice before the selectees are scheduled to leave for camp.

PARK AVENUE EAST SUBWAY TO BE CLOSED

No Traffic To Be Permitted For Week While Workmen Put In Water Line.

The Park Avenue east subway will be closed Monday and will probably remain closed all week to allow street workers to install a portion of the Park Avenue east-Wayne street waterline, Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton announced today.

Crafton said that workers would install a new 12-inch valve on the old line near the subway today in preparation for the new line.

The project is being carried out at a cost of $22,000 to extend fire protection to the Wayne street section. A pressure-regulating valve to maintain adequate pressure between the high and new low pressure lines will be installed at Jeannette avenue.

Crafton inspected the project today and announced that work was progressing well ahead of schedule.

Credit for the speed being shown on the job, the service director said, was due to the use of a mechanical trench digger. Amout 30 WPA men are employed on the project, little more than a third detailed to the $70,000 Lexington avenue project finished recently.

Other street workers today still sought the leak in the Lexington avenue project between Glessner avenue and Blanche street. Crafton said that little progress could be expected until the city's radio electric detector is repaired. Needed parts must be obtained from Columbus.

Last year when he was only 79 in a race in Canada his accelerator jammed as he approached the buoy turn at his usual clip. The boat flew 15 feet in the air, landed right side up and Jaite continued on to win the race.

FILES $20,000 DAMAGE ACTION

Cleveland Woman Sues After Auto Collision on Road Near Lexington.

A $20,000 damage suit had been filed in common pleas court today by Mrs. Rose Okum, Cleveland Heights, who was injured in a traffic accident last Oct. 19 on route 42 one mile north of Lexington.

Defendants named in Mrs. Okum's petition are Glenn D. LeMunyon, 191 West Third street, Mansfield; James Campbell and his sister, Miss Marie Ellen Campbell, both of Lexington, R. D. 1.

Mrs. Okum, who was riding with her husband, Dr. M. L. Okum, at the time of the accident, contends that a car owned by Miss Campbell and operated by either LeMunyon or Campbell was backed out of a driveway at the Campbell home into the path of the Okum car. Miss Campbell was not in the automobile.

Mrs. Okum asks damages covering a fracture of her lower jaw, a slight concussion, and other injuries. Attys. Weldon and Huston, Mansfield, and Lester Okum, Cleveland Heights, represent Mrs. Okum.

TELLS ABOUT PROBLEMS OF YOUTH IN BOOK

Tarkington's New Novel, 'The Heritage of Hatcher Ide,' on Library Shelves.

In his new novel, "The Heritage of Hatcher Ide," now available to Mansfield Public Library patrons, Booth Tarkington returns to the kind of subject which has won him great popularity.

He deals again with the problems of youth, showing sympathy, humor and understanding as he presents the spectacle of a young man in love, this time with a woman almost twice his age.

This theme, both ludicrous and deadly serious, is set against the background of a mid-western town that has never recovered from the depression.

KING'S MASQUE by Evan John Simpson, author of Crippled Splendor, is a picturesque historical novel set in America and Europe before and during the American revolution. Filled with the events and people of the times, the story is mainly concerned with Marie Antoinette and her loyal admirer, Axel von Fersen, with his activities in America, France, and Sweden, with his known feeling for the queen, and ultimately with his murder.

FANNY BY GASLIGHT by Michael Sadleir is a Victorian period piece in which the London underworld of the 1870's comes to life. Fanny Hooper, a genteel little lady of 70, living in a tiny French village, describes her early life to a young English publisher. The second part of the story purports to be narrated by the man whom Fanny really loved and cherished all her life, although she refused to marry him.

OTHER FICTION: CITY OF ILLUSION by Fisher; CURTAINS FOR THE COPPER by Polsky; MURDERS IN VOLUME 2 by Daly.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER by Alan Nevins is the latest addition to the John Baxter Black collection. In this two volume definitive biography of John D. Rockefeller, sr., the author describes him as "the most democratic of men, but his democracy had no taint of affability," and he calls his book "an effort to illuminate, without fear or favor, all aspects of the work of a remarkable innovator, who left a deep imprint upon both the industry and the philanthropy of his nation."

REPORTAGE ON MEXICO by Virginia Prewett is the inside story of modern Mexico—from the colorful Juarez to the stormy triumph of Comacho over Almazan—with many pertinent remarks on the new orientation to the United States. A sympathetic book, based on first-hand information and last minute information.

FRANCE UNDER THE REPUBLIC (1870-1939) by Denis W. Brogan covers the period from the fall of the second empire to the beginning of the present war and gives an excellent background for understanding the fall of France. Written with scholarship, detachment, and urbane irony, this long political history is stimulating reading for the general reader.

THE UNITED STATES AND JAPAN'S NEW ORDER by William C. Johnstone is a summary of U. S. relations with the Far East, with major attention on concessions, extra territoriality and other characteristics of our commerce with China. The author's recommendations for American foreign policy include economic agreements and alliances with the British empire for the Far East, inteligent propaganda in Japan and at home, peace in the Far East through genuine economic threats against Japan.

How Community Fund Agencies Help Mansfield Children

Dental Clinic Provides Children With Proper Teeth Treatment.

Mansfield school children no longer sit through classes with aching teeth because family finances do not permit dental attention.

They are now taken to a dentist's office by case workers of the Mansfield Dental Clinic, the troublesome teeth are filled or extracted and the bill is chalked up to the Clinic.

Since March 11, 1940, when the Clinic began functioning as an organization, 125 boys and girls from both public and parochial schools, have found relief from aching and infected teeth through visits to the dentist. Records of Mrs. J. F. Daley, case administrator, show that 128 extractions, 121 fillings, 11 cleanings and five x-rays have been made since November.

This service was made possible by the united efforts of 30 women's groups upon learning of the increasing number of dental defects existing among school children from lower-income and relief families.

So far it has cost the Clinic approximately $100 a month for dental services. Only cases recommended by the school nurse are accepted and should a dental examination reveal that the cost for giving dental assistance to a certain student will exceed $5, a conference with Clinic workers is held.

Each club in the Clinic supplies a case worker at no cost and this group makes the contacts with parents and dentists and sees to it that the children reach the dental office and home again.

This year the Clinic was accepted as an agency of the Community Fund and will receive $1,050 as an operating budget for the year providing the Fund goal of $64,375 is attained.

Finances the first year were provided by a benefit bridge sponsored by the Student club, a series of book reviews under the auspices of the Clinic and contributions of clubs and individuals.

Need for the Clinic first came to the attention of Delta Theta Tau sorority through reports of the school nurse. The sorority took the initiative in enlisting the interest of other groups and later the nucleus organization issued a city-wide call to all women's clubs to join in the project.

"Open wide—this won't hurt"—newest agency in the Mansfield Community Fund fold is the dental clinic, where treatment is given those financially unable to obtain it.

Mrs. J. W. Ingraham heads the Clinic as president and the advisory board includes W. L. Miller, superintendent of schools, Msgr. R. C. Goebel, Dr. R. C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner, Dr. W. H. Wolford, Dr. F. O. Eckstein and Mrs. K. E. Buhr.

HOSPITAL REPORT SHOWS MORE BABIES AND MORE OPERATIONS

More babies were born, more operations were performed and more patients occupied rooms and wards at Mansfield General hospital during the past three months than in any similar period previously, Dr. A. O. Fonkalsrud stated in the quarterly report at the regular meeting of the board of trustees.

Dr. Fonkalsrud said bed patients for the three months of this year increased 160 over the figure of 1,157 for last year. The month of March showed the greatest increase with a total of 97 over last year's figure of 458. Last March there were 565 patients.

Accident patients treated this quarter showed an increase of 26 for the three-month period. March this year saw 40 accident cases against 34 for a year ago.

There were 82 babies born in March as compared to 55 for the same month last year. Births for the first three months of the year totaled 212 against 177 for the first quarter last year.

In March this year 206 operations were performed as compared to 188 a year ago. Total operations for the year numbered 603, an increase of 13 over the same period last year.

Judge C. H. Huston, president of the board, presided at the meeting.

Program of Girl Scouts Includes Daytime Camp In Summer.

(Editor's Note: This is another in the series of articles describing little known activities of agencies participating in the Mansfield Community Fund, which will hold its annual drive opening April 28.)

Citizenship training and homemaking are recognized factors in the Mansfield Girl Scout program but few people know of the activities afforded by the summer daytime camp.

This six-day camp, held in the city, acquaints girls between 7 and 17 years of age with every phase of camp life and trains them to use what they have at hand instead of relying on outside resources.

They are taught to pitch a tent, to build a fire, roll a blanket in which to sleep and to cook food that every camper will want to share.

Seventy-five girls took advantage of the camp last year and Miss Eleanor Bond, Girl Scout executive, expects that even more will attend this year.

The campers are divided into units according to age and each unit is supervised by two adult counselors who plan such activites as hiking, trailing, group singing, folk dancing and handicraft.

A new camp location is sought this year as the shelter house on the old site, South Diamond street extension, has been removed.

Homemaking — cooking, sewing and the care of young children—is emphasized in regular troop meetings. This spring the girls sewed for overseas war relief making 250 woolen skirts for Richland county chapter of the Red Cross. They may also add a garden project to their program in line with training for national defense.

Mansfield now has 300 Girl Scouts with representation in every school district in their city and their activities for making money have created a bank account of nearly $1,000. This fund will ultimately be used to purchase a permanent recreational center.

The day camp and all other activities of Girl Scouting are made possible because of the Community Fund which has allocated $2,750 toward the Scout organization this year providing the Fund goal of $64,375 is raised.

Three typical Mansfield Girl Scouts—Julia Colby, Jean Kroegher and Evelyn Hartwell, learn how to do housework.

PASSES TEST

SYRACUSE, N. Y. —(U.P.)— Robert Gleason tried 11 times to join the navy without success because of his small chest.

The 17-year-old youngster continued breathing exercises.

"The most persistent applicant I ever met," commented Chief Pharmacist Mate Emory H. Pitchford as he passed Gleason on the 12th trip to the recruiting station.

URGES FARMERS TO FEED MORE CORN TO HOGS

Richland AAA Chairman Says Plan Would Take Care of Surplus, Aid Europe.

Richland county farmers were urged today to help reduce the supply of surplus corn by feeding the grain to hogs, dairy cattle and poultry to provide additional food supplies for Great Britain and other nations resisting aggression.

Guy L. Taylor, county AAA chairman, said "Our job is to convert part of our big supply of feed into concentrated food and the quickest way to do it is by feeding hogs to heavier weights and by increased feeding to cattle and poultry."

He pointed out that the federal government has "pegged" the price of hogs and dairy and poultry products to encourage increased feeding. The government has announced it will support the prices of these farm products through June, 1943.

Taylor said the proposed corn marketing quota referendum for 1941 has been abandoned, but he added that it will not be necessary for farmers to disregard AAA corn allotments for 1941.

Farmers may plant over the corn allotment, up to what is regarded as their "usual" acreage, and still participate to a certain extent in the federal AAA program, the chairman said.

The "usual" acreage is considered about 140 per cent of the present corn allotment. The farmer who overplants his corn allotment, however, will not receive corn conservation payments or corn parity payments, nor will he be eligible for corn loans, it was pointed out.

SALVATION ARMY PROVIDES 436 WITH ROOMS, MEALS IN PERIOD

Four hundred and thirty-six transients were furnished meals and beds by the Salvation Army the first three months of the year, according to a quarterly report of the family welfare department.

Seven of these transients received first aid, nine were given shoes, two were furnished with transportation and 105 garments were distributed within the transient group.

Clothing, furniture and bread aided 134 Mansfield families to either maintain or re-establish themselves.

These items, all donated to the Salvation Army by citizens of Mansfield and distributed without charge, included: 550 used garments, 62 pairs of shoes, 10 mattresses, 33 overcoats, eight cook stoves, two heating stoves, 18 pieces small furniture, two radios, four rugs, 14 comforters, six beds complete with springs and mattresses, nine rocking chairs, three pairs bed springs, three davenports, six tables, six stands, two large mirrors, 20 ladies' coats, three dresses, four lamps, 152 dishes, eight men's suits and 413 loaves of bread.

Because of the increasing demands upon the family welfare department, Adjt. Paul Hoffman announced that the clothing room will be open Mondays from 9 a. m. to 4:30 p. m.

He also urged that anyone having clothing or furniture to contribute to call Canal 2162.

HOLE-IN-ONE

Shot From the Rough Lands In Caddy's Pocket.

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—(U.P.)—A hole-in-one-pocket is the enviable record of L. B. Hankins of Montgomery.

Hankins was playing a round of golf at the Municipal Course with Billy Waldman of Montgomery. Waldman was teeing off. Hankins' shot had sliced into the rough about 80 yards away.

He took a desperate swing at the ball. It bounded high into the air.

"Duck, Waldman!" he shouted, aghast.

Waldman ducked. The ball whizzed past his head, then zoomed down into the side pocket of the dumbfounded caddy's coat, as neatly as an autogiro landing on a dime.

Women Don't Dress to Suit Men's Taste

By MME. QUI VIVE

Does it ever perish, that desire on the part of a woman for the admiration of the male of the species? It isn't likely. It is a living spark in every feminine heart. But does it influence a woman's taste, have much of a place in her beauty plans? We doubt it. Women dress to please men when the men's ideas of clothes agree with their own.

A beauty operator tells this story which shows, I think, which way the wind blows. A customer, close to eighty, regarded her new-laid coiffure in the mirror. Her hair was silver white, the wave lines were graceful, a few soft rolls rested close to her ears. She beamed with satisfaction that was close to vanity.

"I have a neighbor," the sweet old thing confided to the attendant, "a nice old fellow who drops in now and then for a friendly chat in the evening. I do hope he comes to see me tonight. I'd love to have him see my beautiful hair It is beautiful, isn't it?"

And so with us all The little girl preens before the mirror, asks Daddy if she doesn't look nice If some little boy in the second grade tells her he likes her dress it makes her happy· mother is puzzled because she wants to wear the same frock every day.

The wife is delighted when the husband says, "You were the prettiest and best dressed girl at the party" The mother feels a warm glow in her heart when her young son says that he loves to tuck his finger tips in her soft, silky hair. All these small events oil the wheels of life. But I maintain, even so, that women dress to please themselves rather than to please the men.

The husband who tells a wife how to dress is half-brother to the one who tells his wife how to cook. She listens politely, goes ahead with her projects according to her own notions. If a man has too much to say about dress details she is likely to consider him a bit of a sissy. Yes, we know that many great dressmakers are men.

Consider—if you are old enough to remember—when the world of women bobbed its hair. Men were as an army of opposition. They pleaded, fought, threatened divorce, offered bribes, and a lot of good it did them. The shearing went right on Men are conservative about their own women. Make eyes at the blasting girl, but want the mama to stay as is Consider, also, bright red nail polish Did you ever hear a man say he likes it? Not I, and I've asked a lot of them They say that it gives them the creeps: they think it is murderous. The dear-hearts go right on using it, At least most of us do.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Just as you like," Dicky replied. "We have plenty of time to make the station."

"At eight o'clock?" Helena exclaimed. "And it's now seven thirty-five! You're just like Sam. You have plenty of time—of course—to make it on three wheels with one up in the air on the last curve because you take it so fast. Madge, I'm sorry to hurry you, but you really haven't a minute to spare. I know that road."

"I won't be two minutes," I said, starting for the stairs, for I was strongly biased toward Helen's estimate of time and distance. "Dicky, please get the car started. I'll be right down"

"Does that mean five minutes or fifteen?" my husband gibed, but his voice sounded from the vicinity of the outer door.

"It means less than three," I called back as I sped up the stairs, and I made good my boast Donning my hat and coat was a matter of seconds, and with my bag, purse and gloves clutched in my hands, I hurried down the stairs finding Ronald standing at the foot of the staircase

Ronald's Report.

"I told Uncle Dicky I'd bring you out," he said, and with hurried adieux to the others, I went out with him, pausing as soon as he had shut the door behind us.

"The man didn't say much to Carol this time," he said. "She told him that you weren't taking a compartment, but was going in a coach, and he swore a bit, told her to watch out for him tomorrow, and then rang off"

"Did she get a chance to speak to Uncle Dicky?" I asked

"Indeed she didn't," he said emphatically "I took good care of that."

"Thank you so much for that," I said "After I am safely on the train, I want you to tell Uncle Dicky what the man asked about me, tell him that I kept it from him because I knew he would go with me if he knew, and tell him I shall watch out and be prepared for anything Also I shall telephone him here the instant I get to the hotel Then he'll know I'm safe. He can arrange with your mother so that he can be near a telephone, so the ringing will only be for a second."

"Mums and Dad won't mind," Ronald said. "They are used to people calling up to midnight and sleep right through. The probability is that you could call me at two o'clock instead of my calling you from outside, and they'd never know. But there's the possibility one of them might answer from the extension in the upper hall, and that wouldn't be so good"

"Indeed it wouldn't," I told him. "And now I must go or Uncle Dicky will be coming up after me."

"That's true" he agreed, and slipping his hand beneath my arm escorted me down the steps to the car from which Dicky was just clambering out.

"Your three minutes—" he began accusingly.

"It was just three minutes when I reached the lower floor," I told him triumphantly. "Then I said good bye and have been telling Ronald some things I want him to do. But I'm all ready now."

At the Station.

"Then we'll go," he said, helping me into the seat beside the driver's, while Ronald stowed my bag with the other one in the back. Then with a "So long Ronald, I'll be seeing you," he started the car, and sent it on its way. We arrived at the station several minutes before train time, and as Dicky had attended to my ticket and compartment during our earlier trip, we had time to sit quietly in the car for a little space.

"Now tell me," my husband said, "about the telephone call."

"It was from that young gangster," I said "Ronald listened in."

"The devil you say," Dicky ejaculated. "So he really followed us down here. The nerve of the lad But look over there at the end of the platform. Do you see what I see?"

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

BY

Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

"RESULTS" PLAYERS

Mediocre players frequently develop a complex whereby they judge the merit of their partners' work on the basis of results. If something pans out well they think their mate has done finely. If it works out disastrously, they are prone to loosen a torrent of abuse. Actually, bridge is such an uncertain proposition, at many stages that some of the best work proves expensive and some of the worst turns out fortuitously.

North: ♠ None; ♥ A Q 2; ♦ A Q 2; ♣ K J 10 8 5 4 3

West: ♠ K 10 8 6 2; ♥ 6; ♦ 10 9 3; ♣ A Q 6 2

East: ♠ A J 7 5 4; ♥ K J 9 5 4; ♦ K J 8; ♣ None

South: ♠ Q 9 3; ♥ 10 8 7 3; ♦ 7 6 5 4; ♣ 9 7

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♣	1 ♠
Pass	3 ♠	4 ♣	4 ♥
Pass	4 ♠	5 ♣	Pass
Pass	Dbl

The North player who bid as shown was the only one in an entire duplicate game who made the sacrifice bid over the hostile 4-Spades. The opponents took two tricks against him in each suit except spades setting him four tricks and giving East and West a score of 700 points. That was the highest for any East-West pair, as nobody else got more than 650 points, for making 5-Spades. Consequently the North player at this table bid his side into bottom score.

After South had studied over the traveling score slip and realized his side was bottom, he opened up on his partner and gave him a regular broadside about optimism. North finally had enough of it, and took his hand again out of the duplicate board to show South how good his bidding was. If South had possessed even the J of hearts or diamonds, the side would have been down one less trick and would have made top score instead of bottom.

North, who was perfectly correct and sound in his contention, maintained that a hand so weak it did not even contain that small amount of useful strength is the rarest kind of rarity even in the face of the sort of bidding that had been done When the two opponents agreed with North, South finally silenced himself and apologized for what he had said

Tomorrow's Problem.

North: ♠ K J 5 2; ♥ 9 8 4; ♦ 7 6; ♣ J 9 8 6

West: ♠ 10 6 4 3; ♥ K Q J 2; ♦ J 10 4 3 2; ♣ None

East: ♠ 8 7; ♥ A 10 7 6 5; ♦ K Q 8 5; ♣ A 7

South: ♠ A Q 9; ♥ 3; ♦ A 9; ♣ K Q 10 5 4 3 2

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

If West has supported his partner's hearts during the bidding, and South finally got into 5-Clubs which East doubled what is the correct defense against the contract?

Means of Gaining Obedience

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Dear Dr Myers My boy is almost four. He is very contrary When I ask him to take the milk bottles out he refuses. If I tell him not to put them out he does it immediately I become so exhausted from trying to teach him that I don't know what to do

"Physically he is healthy Mentally he is bright He uses large words for his age He loves to have me read to him"

From three to five stubbornness is very prevalent. It need not be It would not be so pronounced with your son if you always kept calm and clearly drew the line between a request and a command

When you ask him if he would like to take the bottles out for you and he said, 'No!' you had no occasion to be annoyed. You asked a civil question and he made a civil reply. You should have taken him at his word and without complaining or scolding him should have taken out the bottles yourself. You might have commanded him in the first place in which event he should have been punished for disobedience. Yet it hardly would be wise to make a command of a four-year-old in such a case since this was not a routine procedure If always when you make a request of him, however you treat it entirely as a request he eventually will enjoy acceding to your request in case you are consistent and then show great appreciation each time he accedes. If you make a request that you are pretty sure he will do, you will be training him in co-operation. On the other hand, when you tell him you don't want the bottles taken out make it clear you are commanding him not to take them out. If he proceeds to take take them out in defiance of your command assign him at once to sit in a chair for exactly 20 minutes where you can see him doing nothing But if he should leave that chair one minute before the time of sentence ended you should give him a spanking he would remember. Settle this matter once and for all so that he never again would venture to leave the chair before time is up.

Another mother wants to know what I would suggest as a workable penalty for a bright eight-year-old boy who will not go to bed at the designated time

Since this is a routine matter for every night during the year I recommended she and the father agree upon a regular hour when he must be in bed with his light off. Then make clear to him that all you will do is to observe the clock Tell him in due time that every time he fails by a single minute to be in bed at the designated hour he will have to sit in a chair doing nothing for exactly one hour not being allowed to go to bed until the sentence is served. No radio then, no funnies, no books newspapers or toys. Do this the next evening if he is in bed a single minute late And the next and the next until he learns to send himself to bed promptly on time. Say nothing more to him.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, April 19.

A generally favorable and fortunate state of affairs may be read from the ruling lunar and mutual aspects And while there may be activity and excitement, with much commotion in the private as well as business relations, yet there is likely to develop certain strange, curious or intriguing situations which it will take some sound reasoning and good judgment to safely negotiate. There may be sudden and surprising openings, coming from secret or unpredictable sources, calling for swift insight and direct action, in order to reap benefits and personal gratification. Be alert but decisive.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of much good fortune and personal gratification, with progress pleasure and probably social or sentimental felicity, although these may be attended by peculiar, intriguing or mystifying factors to be dealt with much rationizing, keen understanding and quick action. Practical tactics and common sense in obscure situations may avert pitfalls and delusions. Keep balanced and sane in strange adventures

A child born on this day may be clever, steady and practical while having an inner nature or vision out of the usual or commonplace. It will be genial, kindly and romantic as well as artistic.

Further Control of Industry Expected

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Broadway Futurama.

(Tempus fugit, but Broadway doesn't, and neither, we hope, do Broadway columns. The following will give you an idea of what will be hot news in a chatter section a quarter of a century from now—say around 1966.)

Mae West is tiffing with her studio. She says she's tired of playing wicked old grandmothers on the screen. Remember when she played wicked old grandfathers, the rascals? . . . That grayish gent helping old George Jessel across the street wasn't his son . . . it was his father-in-law.

Tyrone Power will probably get the Academy Award for his excellent portrayal of Darryl Zanuck in the picture, "Darryl Zanuck."

NBC and CBS are on the verge of settling that old feud with ASCAP. . . . Joan Carroll is denying those divorce rumors, but admits she's planning a revival of "Panama Hattie," that favorite of your dad and mom, way back when.

Those two baldheaded gents nightly in the first pew at Minsky's are Franchot Tone and Burgess Meredith. . . . Teddy Powell and Marguerite James are threatening to elope. . . . Senator LaGuardia looks fine in his new black sombrero. . . . The Rialto has booked the world premiere of "Frankenstein's Grandson." Ought to be a chiller.

Billy Rose's young son is studying stenography. . . . Spivy has added one more entendre to her songs. . . . Victor Mature is still talking about his operation, and old Eddie Cantor claims that's a steal from one of his vaudeville routines. Vaudeville is something they used to have in theaters.

It is wildly reported that Carmen Miranda is learning to speak English. . . . "Tobacco Road" celebrates its 14,600th performance tonight, coincidental with the release of the fifth film version. . . . John Barrymore's sponsors are complaining that the Great Profile's language on the air has been too mild lately. They want him to get a new blackboard.

* * *

Buddy DeSylva plans to open three musical comedies on the same night next November, just to confound the critics—most of whom have been confounded in two languages by the Shuberts, anyway. . . . The Museum of Modern Art is reviving old Dorothy Lamour pictures, showing her in a costume our grandparents called the "sarong." Simply hysterical.

Capt. Monty Woolley has retired from the honorary police force and has joined the honorary fire department.

We're due for a regular cycle of television plays all on the same theme—the love story of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. That was quite a story when we were young—guess it always will be. . . . Elaine Barrie pursued a fellow across the continent again last night and didn't stop until he caught her.

An ordinary layman was spotted dining at the Algonquin Tuesday, and Frank Case made him a celebrity before he left. . . . Mike Riley, who will be forgotten for his "Music Goes Round and Round," is working on a sequel.

Gene Krupa will appear with Leopold Stokowski as a character in the next Walt Disney feature cartoon. Mickey Mouse will conduct the score. . . . Stage Magazine will try again.

Peggy Hopkins Joyce is threatening to open a night club of her own. . . . Moss Hart has written a new play about an aspirin tablet. . . . The Hays office has banned sweaters, bathing suits, negligees and gloves. . . . Martha Raye has a call out for chorus boys for 2:30 this afternoon at Manhattan Center.

Katharine Hepburn's tailor has made her a new suit with four pairs of pants. . . . The track at Miami opens next week and Al Jolson has a sore throat, already. . . . A new Egyptian prince got off the boat yesterday and Honeychile Wilder is wearing a new set of rubies.

Liz Whitney created a stir by arriving one night late for the opening of Eugene O'Neill's newest play, which lasts for a week, with one-half hour intermission for dinner. . . . Herbert Bayard Swope has pinker cheeks than Major Edward Bowes.

U. S. READY TO MEET TEST ON PRICE-FIXING

Administrator Says Order Gave Him Authority, Relies on Public Opinion.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The government is prepared to meet any effort to challenge its authority to control prices, defense officials said today, although public opinion has been the principal weapon for enforcement of orders so far issued.

The possibility of a test of authority arose this week when an order was issued freezing steel and iron prices. Steel men claimed it would prove injurious to the industry. Indicating a fight might be avoided, however, price control authorities said today the order was subject to modification anytime investigation showed that to be a necessity.

With regard to the general problem of enforcement, Leon Henderson, price administrator, said his greatest weapon was the "moral support of the community."

Six price schedules have been put into effect since Feb. 17, and officials said they had not received any formal complaints of violations.

In addition to the steel-iron order, price schedules have covered second-hand machine tools, secondary aluminum and scrap, steel and iron scrap, zinc and bituminous coal.

Henderson declared bluntly that his authority was "enough" for the job he had to do and that the presidential order creating his office contained within it practically all of the powers of the old war industries board.

The order cites a number of presidential powers over industry in an emergency, the principal one being the section of the selective service act authorizing the president to "draft industry" under certain circumstances.

Price officials now are concerned primarily with commodities and raw materials vital to the defense program. There have been no indications that they would act soon on consumer goods.

The bureau of labor statistics says that the cost of living on Feb. 15 was 110.8 on its index compared with 100.6 on Sept. 15, 1939, shortly after the war started. The index uses the years 1935-1939 as 100.

Meat price slately have probably shown the greatest increase of those of any common food, and authorities have been particularly interested in them because they offer an example of a problem in government price regulation efforts—that is, boosting prices in order to stabilize them.

A high school graduate at 17, K. Bruce Sweet, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. B. Sweet, 66 Sherman avenue, today had been appointed one of the three alternates from the 17th congressional district to the Annapolis Naval academy. The appointment was made by Congressman J. Harry McGregor on the recommendation of friends of the youth here. The youth is employed in a Helen avenue grocery. First place appointment to Annapolis went to William S. Sedgwick of Newark.

D. D. Montoya, field executive of the Johnny Appleseed Boy Scout area, is mystifying his friends with an old match-trick which he has perfected. Montoya carefully folds a whole match in a handkerchief. With some elaborate hand waving he will then break the match into a number of pieces inside the handkerchief. Doubters may break the match in the handkerchief themselves. Then Mantoya with a flourish shakes the match, intact, from the handkerchief to the accompanying gasps of the unbelievers.

E. B. Kallmerten has made pets of the squirrels in South park by feeding them nuts and corn and when something happens to one of them he doesn't like it. He complained to city parks officials today that a dog killed the mother of four newly-born squirrels early this week. Kallmerten said there is a city ordinance against dogs running loose in the park and he wants steps taken to enforce it. He added that dogs chase the squirrels every time the bushy tails come down to the ground. Some of the squirrels are so tame that they go across Brinkerhoff avenue to Kallmerten's home and play in the lawn and on the house roof.

Locked outside while doing his round of window-cleaning on the sixth floor of the Richland Trust company building the other day, a window-cleaner spent 20 harrowing minutes before he was noticed and let into the building. AUTO INDUSTRY ACCEPTS CUT IN PRODUCTION

20 Per Cent Curtailment of Output Seen as Initial Defense Plan Move.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The action of OPM Director William S. Knudsen in obtaining an agreement from the automobile industry to cut motor car and truck production 20 per cent starting Aug. 1 today foreshadowed further governmental control of industry in the drive to speed up airplane and munition output for the U. S. and England.

At the same time, there was wide speculation in official Washington over the wording of Knudsen's announcement. Knudsen said that the entire automobile industry "willingly accepted an initial 20 per cent reduction in the production of motor vehicles for the model year beginning in Aug 1 this year in order to make available more manpower, materials, facilities and management for the defense load now being made ready."

Defense chiefs were asked whether "initial 20 per cent reduction" meant that there might be more curtailment later. They shrugged, indicating that production might be cut further if it was found to be necessary.

Even the 20 per cent, Knudsen estimated, will lead to a drop of 1,000,000 from the estimated output of 5,000,000 cars and trucks for the 1942 model year. The reduction also will save about 1,600,000 tons of steel a year which can be diverted into the manufacture of airplanes, ships, tanks and guns.

With Knudsen's announcement, the office of Federal Price Control Administrator Leon Henderson revealed that it already had made a study of "prices, cost and profits relationship" in the auto industry. However, Henderson's office regards automobiles as luxuries and said auto prices were not as important as prices of industrial raw materials which might affect the prices of "tanks and guns."

It also was pointed out that it would be almost impossible for the government to police used car prices and that is the field where the government expects the most price advances to be attempted.

ELECTION AIDES ASKED TO QUIT

Four Members, Clerk of Board In Paulding County Are Facing Removal.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—The four members and the clerk of the Paulding county board of elections today pondered an ultimatum from Secretary of State John E. Sweeney that they resign by next Friday or face removal by him.

The secretary of state, who is the state's chief election official, delivered his demand to the members yesterday at a meeting in his office. The members are O. E. Ehrhart, Democrat, chairman; William Russell, Democrat; Clifford Keck, Republican; A. B. Moore, Republican.

Sweeney also demanded the resignation of Charles Price, Republican, board clerk.

Ehrhart and Keck protested Sweeney's action and said that if he would investigate the allegations of irregularities in the Paulding county election of last fall he would receive a different "impression."

Sweeney replied that the withdrawal of the members and the clerk from the board had been recommended by a grand jury. "In the face of these findings, there is nothing to do but what I am doing," he said.

The allegations of irregularities were in connection with the race for county engineer. Ballot tampering was charged but the board members claimed the envelopes used to seal the ballots burst open accidentally.

12 MAJORS NAMED TO DIRECT CITY'S COMMUNITY FUND DRIVE

Twelve majors had been appointed today by the Rev. D. N. Roller, chairman of the Community Fund campaign, to head the 1941 drive for $64,375. The campaign opens April 28.

Heading the industrial division which accounts for 60 per cent of funds received from the campaign is Austin C. Rhoads, secretary of the Tappan Stove company. Industrial executives, office employes and plant workers compose this division.

Majors of the remaining 11 divisions are: automobile, Edwin Geiger; clothing, Bart Haley; construction, O. C. McCormick; financial, George H. Smith; food, Attorney James Hoffman and the Junior Association of Commerce; public employes, Attorney Harold Burns and the Hermit club; organizations, Mrs. Frank Maxwell; professional, C. N. Schultz; public service, Kent Oberlin; education, W. L. Miller, and special gifts, George W. Stephens.

This group will be responsible for solicitations to be gathered by approximately 300 workers. The majors expect to have their respective division workers lined up by the first of the week and will deliver their first instructions at the opening rally dinner next Friday night at the Westinghouse cafeteria and auditorium.

Seating at the dinner will be so arranged to group each working division with its major. This will provide ample time for discussion of campaign details and instructions to workers.

Dramatization of around-the-clock activities of each of the 11 agencies participating in the Community Fund will follow the dinner.

Mrs. V. E. Vining, dinner-rally chairman, assisted by J. Gilbert Baird, will stage the presentation to which each agency will lend support.

Approximately 300 are expected to attend including Fund officials, workers and members of all agency boards. Anyone interested in attending is eligible to do so.

2 YOUTHS HELD

One Caught Here Second Time on Auto Theft Charges.

Two Toledo youths, one of whom was arrested here for the same crime last October, were taken into custody last night by Mansfield police in connection with the theft of an auto from that city.

The youths, both 16, were arrested after police were attracted by a broken bumper and a missing license plate on the car. The driver, the same youth who was picked up here last year for the same offense, told police that he was driving his father's car. A check with Toledo police revealed that the car had been stolen yesterday.

The pair is being held for Toledo police who are expected to arrive here today to return them. No record was made here of the disposition of the October case. The youth was handed over to Toledo police for the theft of an auto owned by a Toledo schoolteacher.

Too Sick to Keep Date With Death, He Gets Reprieve

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Unable to leave his bed in the prison hospital to keep an appointment with death, Joseph Curl, 52-year-old Clinton county Negro who was to have been electrocuted tonight, was given a 30-day reprieve today by Gov. John W. Bricker.

The prison medical staff reported that Curl is dying of pulmonary tuberculosis and unable to be moved. He was not expected to survive the reprieve period which expires May 19.

Curl, once pardoned after being sentenced to life imprisonment for a Greene county murder in 1912, was condemned to die for the slaying of Wilbur Baber in Clinton county last October.

HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD—The refreshing thing about Gregory LaCava is that he doesn't consider (out loud, anyway) that the pictures he directs are monumental.

He was sitting around the set the other day, chinning with Preston Foster during one of those waits between scenes.

"It's bad enough to make pictures," said LaCava, grinning, "without having to see 'em." And that reminded him of an experience with his own "Stage Door," a film highly lauded, and one which helped Ginger Rogers on her climb from hoofing roles.

When the picture was finished, he got a glimpse of it after the first rough cutting job. Then he went to New York to relax in the congenial company of a newspaper friend. The friend had haerd about "Stage Door" and wanted to catch it.

One thing led to another, but never to "Stage Door." On the last day of LaCava's visit, the two set out again to see the picture. But New York is a large and inviting city, and on that day, as always, there were invitations and intriguing byways to counter. When they eventually arrived at "Stage Door," it was too late to get into the swing of it, and LaCava has yet to see what audiences saw in his movie.

LACAVA cast Foster for "Unfinished Business," with Irene Dunne and Robert Montgomery, after running off a minor Foster epic called "News Is Made At Night," the only picture recently in which Foster has worn conventional clothes of the day.

And during their chinning bee, LaCava told Foster what Jack Kelly, the casting man, had said of his recent work. It was: "This Foster's fine; better than he's ever been."

To which LaCava said he replied: 'Is he? I wouldn't know. Never saw him in a picture before."

Foster's comeback was just as broad.

"I can name a few of my pictures that it's lucky for me you didn't see. If you had, I wouldn't be in this one."
